ORDERS and INSTRUCTIONS

BATTALION OF MILITIA.

 THE County of Wilts, in the year 1757, had made
 T some progress towards the execution of the acts  for the better ordering the Militia Forces: The lists  had been delivered, and in many parishes, the men  balloted and inrolled; but it was near the end of the following year, before the same measures had taken place in every part of the county.

On the fifteenth day of August 1758, the deputy lieutenants, at a general meeting, held for further enforcing the militia laws, finding the battalion near compleat in men, set about forming it into ten companies, of eighty men each. This being attended with some difficulties, the division of the county was referred to Thomas Phipps and John Turner Esquires, the receivers general of the land tax, as gentlemen best acquainted with the situations of the several parishes and tythings &c, and they accordingly drew up the following plan, which was immediately adopted, and has been nearly adhered to ever since.

ORDERS for the WILTSHIRE

A PLAN, for forming eight hundred private militia men, to be raised within the county of Wilts, into ten companies, consisting of eighty men to each.

The battalion being formed according to the foregoing plan, 1759 and having received arms and cloathing, was exercised several times by companies and half companies, in the spring of 1759, and orders then began to be issued for the better government of it.

March 25th, 1759.

ORDERS to be observed by the serjeants of the Wiltshire battalion of militia, commanded by the right honourable lord Bruce.

The serjeants of the several subdivisions, by whom the men are exercised, are to make a return to the captain or commanding officer of the company to which they belong, the day after exercise, of the number of men that appeared, and the names of the men that were absent, and know his pleasure in regard to the absentees, which return the captain or commanding officers of companies are required to send to the adjutant, the second day after exercise, with an account of what they have ordered to be done with the absentees, in the following manner:

Colonel lord Bruce's, By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:
 Lieut: col: Northey's, By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:
 Major Young's, - By a serjeant to Mr. Boucher at Salisbury:
 Captain Goddard's, - By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:
 Captain Lambert's, - By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:
 Captain Beckford's, By a serjeant to Mr. Boucher at Salisbury:
 Captain Hussey's, - By a serjeant to Mr. Boucher at Salisbury:
 Captain Montagu's, By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:
 Captain Long's, - By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:
 Bradford company, By a serjeant to the adjutant at Devizes:

Such of the above returns, as Mr. Boucher receives, he is to send directly to the adjutant, in order to enable him to transmit them regularly to the colonel or commanding officer of the battalion.

The serjeants are not to wear their cloaths, but on days of exercise or sundays, without the leave of their officers: They are to be very carefull in taking in, and packing the arms and cloaths, after exercise, and to examine, rub, and oil the arms at least once in every five days.

They are to attend such men, as desire to be instructed in their exercise.

They are to be subsisted, at the rate of five shillings and six pence per week; the remainder of their pay to be applied in buying such necessaries as they may want, at an examination to be made every four or six months.

ORDERS for the WILTSHIRE

1759 At a meeting held (in the absence of the lord lieutenant of the county of Wilts) by us, whose names are hereunto subscribed, three of his Majesty's deputy lieutenants of the said county, at the three lions inn within the city of New Sarum in the said county, on the 8th. day of March 1759;

It is now ordered and directed, that the militia for the said county shall be trained and exercised, on the Tuesday and Wednesday in the next Easter week; and that the training and exercising the said militia shall be for that reason dispensed with in any one of the months, which shall next occur in the time of harvest, to be appointed, as most suitable and convenient for the time of harvest in the several parts of the county, by the respective commanding officers of the several companies, who are to give due notice thereof accordingly.

Wm. Wade Adjut.

At

At a meeting of the gentlemen, as well deputy lieutenants as 1759 officers of the battalion of militia of the county of Wilts, held at the Devizes, the 20th. day of April 1759, resolved;

That the exercising days, for the first week in May, do remain, as they are already appointed by the officers of the several companies, and that the next exercising week do commence, on monday the 21st. of May: That, for the future, the first monday in every month be the commencement of the first week of that month.

That the officers do attend the subdivision, in which their companies are exercised, and not leave it to the serjeants, as it will be more agreeable to the act of parliament, and promote the service more effectually.

That the exercise, as approved and directed by lord Pembroke, be followed and practiced by all the companies; and that the companies, who have not as yet sent serjeants to the adjutant to be instructed, do forthwith send them.

That the priming and loading motions be practiced, till Whitsuntide.

That hooks and eyes be put to the mens coats, to hook them back.

That the sword belts be converted into shoulder belts, for the cartouch boxes; and that the cartouch boxes, belonging to major Young's, captain Husley's, captain Beckford's, and captain Lambert's companies, be sent to Salisbury to Mr. Boucher, who will give directions for the doing them; and that the cartouch boxes, belonging to lord Bruce's, lieutenant colonel Northey's, captain Goddard's, captain Montagu's, captain Long's, and captain Awdry's companies, be sent to the adjutant at Devizes.

That the several captains do bring in an account, at Whitsuntide, of what moneys they have expended in contingencies.

That Devizes be the place of rendezvous, at Whitsuntide, for the exercising the militia of the county of Wilts; and the adjutant is hereby impowered to apply and demand billets for the quartering it.

That the several companies be marched in order by their officers into Devizes, on the monday in the Whitsun week; and that the officers do meet that evening, at the black bear, to consider of and settle a plan of operation, for the week.

That the officers do wear boots on all times of exercise, unless they exercise in battalion.

That the officers dine alternately, at the black bear and white swan, at a shilling ordinary, and each gentleman call for his own wine.

On

ORDERS for the WILTSHIRE

1759 On the 4th. June 1759, the battalion marched into Devizes by companies, and was there trained and exercised during the Whitsun week, under the command of the following officers:

No. 1.

The Great Bedwin company.

Colonel - - Thomas Lord Bruce
 Captain Lieut. Francis Popham

ORDERS issued during the Whitsun week.

Devises, June 4.

Parole Wiltshire.

A lieutenant and thirty of the most perfect men of each company, with all the serjeants, corporals and drums of the battalion, to be under arms this evening, at six o' clock, at the market place, in order to fire vollies; the whole to be in white gaiters, well powdered, hats well cocked up, and in perfect order: The men to be supplied with three cartouches each.

A guard, consisting of a serjeant, corporal, and twelve men, to mount immediately; two centinels from it to be posted, at the commanding officer's quarters, with bayonets fixed, who are to rest their firelocks to him, as he passes or repasses; to all other officers they are to remain, with their firelocks ordered: The centinels are to be relieved every two hours, and the corporals, who post them, are to give them orders to pay the proper complements, as above directed.

The serjeants and corporals to be under arms, at 7 o' clock in the morning, in order for exercise, at the green: The men to repair to Roundway hill, and be there by 10 o' clock.

Instructions for tuesday.

The serjeants and corporals of the battalion to be joined, and perform the manual and platoon exercise, march and wheel: To be exercised by the adjutant.

The method of attacking to be practiced.

The companies to be drawn up sixty yards from each other, and told off in two divisions: The colonel's company on the right, the lieutenant colonel's on the left, and so on, right and left ac-

The manual, by whole companies, without stops, twice:

Platoon exercise, the same:

Platoon exercise, advancing and retreating:

Method of attacking:

March and wheel, in close and open order.

The greatest life and spirit must be in every motion, particularly in the priming and loading motions.

The officers are desired to meet at the New Hall, with their fuzes, in order for exercise, at 10 o' clock. The serjeants and corporals to be ready to turn out, at 12 o' clock, for exercise: The men to hold themselves in readiness to go to Roundway hill in the afternoon, if fair.

Serjeant Gordon is discharged for misbehaviour.

Devizes, June 5.

Parole Pembroke.

A guard, consisting of a subaltren, two serjeants, two corporals, and one drum, to mount at 1 o' clock: Lieutenant Stonehouse for the guard.

The serjeants are to call the rolls of their respective companies, at 6 o' clock this evening, when the companies are to be paid, and receive their black stocks. The men are not to let down the cocks of their hats, on any account: They are to take their hats off to all officers, whenever they pass them.

Whenever the men fire, the serjeants are to examine their firelocks afterwards, and if they find any loaded, they are to turn those men into the rear, and fire them off.

The

The serjeants and corporals to be in the Green, to-morrow 1759 morning at 9 o' clock, and the men upon Roundway hill, at 12 o' clock, if fair weather; if otherwise, the serjeants and corporals to be at the New Hall.

Devizes, June 6.

Parole Wilton.

The battalion intire to be under arms, at 4 o' clock, at the New Park, near to Mr. Willey's house: An officer of a company to march the men, regularly by files, to the place of exercise: A serjeant, corporal, and 40 of the most aukward men, to assemble at the place of exercise, half an hour after 3 o' clock, and receive directions there from lieutenant Montagu.

Ensign Webb for guard to-morrow; but not to relieve, till the battalion returns from the field. Four serjeants, 4 corporals, with 10 of the most aukward men of each company, to parade at 8 o' clock to-morrow morning, in the market place; to be commanded by lieutenant Montagu, and marched to Roundway hill, in order to secure a place of exercise.

The captains, who have not made any stoppages from their mens pay, are to make such stoppages, as they may think necessary to answer any demands, that may be made on their men, when they leave the town.

All the officers to march at the head of their companies from the parade to the place of exercise: The companies to parade in the Green, at 9 o' clock.

Devizes, June 7.

Parole Devizes.

The battalion intire to be under arms on the Green, to-morrow morning at 9 o' clock, and to be marched from thence, immediately after, to the place of exercise, by an officer of a company. The officers to wear white gaiters, and the men to be in white gaiters and black stocks. Each man to be provided with 18 cartouches, and the same aukward 10 men of a company, with serjeants and corporals in proportion, to assemble in the market place, at 7 o' clock, and receive directions from lieutenant Montagu. The several companies to be called over to-morrow morning, and the absentees reported, with the causes of their absence. The arms to be very clean to-morrow morning, and well flinted. The men, who do not wear their bayonets with the sockets turned inwards, are to turn them immediately.

The arms to be changed, to-morrow evening, to those companies, whose numbers they are marked with.

Devizes, June 8.

Parole St. George.

A serjeant's guard to mount this evening. A return to be brought in immediately of the number of men, of the several companies, that appeared.

The serjeants, who have not got the halberts belonging to their companies, and the men, who have not got the firelocks belonging to their companies, are to parade in the market place, at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning, in order to their being changed.

The several captains are desired, not to march their companies out of town, till after the post comes in to-morrow morning, which will be about 6 o'clock.

¶ The post not bringing an order to embody the battalion, as was expected, the companies were marched out of Devizes by their officers, and the men dismissed to their several parishes.

After the meeting in the Whitsun week, the half companies 1759 were exercised but once more at their respective places of rendezvous; for, it being thought necessary to draw out some part of the militia for the defence of the kingdom, on the 20th day of June an order with the King's sign manual was issued, for embodying the Wiltshire battalion. The several orders and letters on this occasion are as follow.

Order under the King's sign manual for embodying the battalion.

To our right trusty and right well beloved cousin, Henry earl of Pembroke, our lieutenant for the county of Wilts.

GEORGE R.

We having (agreeably to the acts for the better ordering of the militia forces in that part of Great Britain called England) communicated to parliament, that We had received repeated intelligence of the actual preparations making in the French ports to invade this kingdom, and of the imminent danger of such invasion being attempted; which intelligence having been since farther confirmed; Our will and pleasure is, and We do hereby order you, with all convenient speed, to draw out and embody all the militia of the county of Wilts under your direction, and that you do cause the same to be held in every respect, ready to march, as occasion shall require, to such posts within this kingdom, as We shall judge proper to assign them, and to be put under the command of such general officer or officers, as We shall be pleased to appoint over them, and to obey such further orders, as shall be judged necessary for the safety and defence of this kingdom; and for so doing this shall be your warrant. Given at our court of Kensington, the 20th day of June, 1759, and in the 32d year of our reign.

By his Majesty's command.

W. PITT.

1759 Letter from the secretary at war to the earl of Pembroke.

My lord,

War office, June 21, 1759.

The King having (agreeably to the acts for the better ordering of the militia forces in that part of Great Britain called England) communicated to parliament, that he had received repeated intelligence of the actual preparations making in the French ports to invade this kingdom, and of the imminent danger of such invasion being attempted, which intelligence has since been further confirmed; and his Majesty having accordingly ordered the militia of the county of Wilts to be embodied, and to be held in every respect ready to march, as occasion shall require, to such posts within this kingdom, as his Majesty shall judge proper to assign them, and to be put under the command of such general officer or officers, as his Majesty shall be pleased to appoint over them, and to obey such further orders, as shall be judged necessary for the safety and defence of this kingdom; I have the honour to signify to your lordship, It is His Majesty's pleasure, that you cause the militia under your command to march forthwith, according to the inclosed order, to Winchester, where they are to serve under major general Holmes, of which he is already informed by a letter from me, whereof you will receive a copy herewith.

As I am sensible the soldiers under your command cannot conveniently march without knapsacks, I will take care to send immediately a sufficient number of them to Devizes, where the regiment is ordered to assemble, and I would have sent gueters for the men, but I am informed many of them have got them already; however Mr. Trotter, in Frith Street near Soho Square, is by my direction making a quantity of gueters, which, if your lordship pleases to order them, will be sent down to you without delay. I have also by his Majesty's order, directed the commanding officer of colonel Wolf's regiment of foot at Winchester, to send immediately a prudent and intelligent officer, to attend the regiment at Devizes, who will to the best of his power advise and assist them during their march, in those things, which must at first from their novelty produce difficulties.

As it is necessary, that I should have a return of the regiment under your lordship's command, in order to my preparing an estimate of their pay, I must desire, that your lordship will as soon as possible cause an exact return to be transmitted to me of the whole regiment, as divided into companies, with the number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers, and private men in each company.

I hope you will believe, that both from duty and inclination I 1759 shall think myself happy in every opportunity of assisting the regiment under your command, and I beg your lordship or the commanding officer for the time being will always apply to me, whenever it is thought, my assistance can be usefull.

I have the honour to be &c.

BARRINGTON.

Order for assembling at Devizes, and marching to Winchester.

To the earl of Pembroke, his Majesty's lieutenant for the county of Wilts &c.

It is his Majesty's pleasure, that you cause the Wiltshire regiment of militia, under your command, to assemble immediately at Devizes, and march from thence, by such routes and in such divisions, as you shall think most convenient, to Winchester, where they are to be quartered, and follow such orders, as they shall receive from major general Holmes: Wherein the civil magistrates and all others concerned, are to be assisting in providing quarters, impressing carriages, and otherwise as there shall be occasion. Given at the war office this 21st day of June 1759.

By his Majesty's command,

BARRINGTON.

Letter from the secretary at war to major general Holmes.

Sir, War office, 21 June 1759.

I am to acquaint you, that his Majesty has been pleased to direct, that the Wiltshire militia shall be put under your command.
You will see by the acts lately passed concerning the militia, which I send you herewith, that this part of the national force, from the time of it's being ordered on service, is to be on the same footing in all respects, as the regular troops, subject to the same discipline, paid in the same manner, and intitled to the same honours and privileges; you will therefore consider them in all respects as soldiers; and it is the King's pleasure and strict injunction, that they be treated as such, regard being had to their present inexperience, which, as well as the good will shewn by them in defence of

1759 of their king and country, intitles them both to indulgence and assistance from the rest of the army, whereof they are now a part. Having said thus much, it would be unnecessary to recommend them to your care; but as you cannot be continually with them yourself, It is his Majesty's pleasure, that you direct one or more able and discreet officers under your command, to be constantly with the militia, in order to give them such information and assistance as they may want, till they are more accustomed to military duties.

I have the honour to be &c.

Wm. Barrington BARRINGTON.

Order from three deputy lieutenants for assembling the battalion.

To the right honourable lord Bruce colonel of the Wiltshire battalion of militia.

WILTS Whereas an order under the hand of the right honourable lord Barrington, dated at the war office the 21st day of this instant June, and directed to the earl of Pembroke, his Majesty's lieutenant for the county of Wilts, hath been delivered unto us, signifying his Majesty's pleasure to his said lieutenant, that the Wiltshire regiment of militia under his command should immediately assemble at the Devizes, and march from thence to Winchester; and whereas the said lieutenant is absent from the said county of Wilts, and by an act passed in the 30th year of the reign of his present Majesty, it is enacted, that, in such case, three or more deputy lieutenants shall with all convenient speed draw out such regiment of militia; We therefore, William Northey, James Montagu, and Thomas Goddard esquires, three deputy lieutenants of the county aforesaid, in obedience to his Majesty's above recited order, do hereby require you immediately to draw out the regiment of militia under your command, and assemble the same at the Devizes, and march from thence by such routs and in such divisions, as you shall think most proper, to Winchester, where they are to be quartered, and follow such orders, as they shall receive from general Holmes; Wherein the civil magistrates, and all others concerned, are to be assisting, in providing quarters, impressing carriages, and otherwise as there shall be occasion. Given at Devizes, this 23^d day of June 1759.

Colonel lord Bruce's order to the several captains, to assemble their companies &c. 1759

In obedience to an order, under the hands of William Northey, James Montagu, and Thomas Goddard esquires, three deputy lieutenants of the county of Wilts, dated at Devizes, this 23d day of June, requiring me immediately, to draw out the Wiltshire regiment of militia under my command, I do hereby order you, to assemble the company under your command, and march the same by such routes, as are most convenient, so as to rendezvous at Devizes afore said, on tuesday next in the evening, at the farthest. The civil magistrates, and all others concerned, are to be assisting to you, in providing carriages and other necessaries, as there shall be occasion. Given at Tottenham Park in the county afore said, this 23d day of June 1759.

BRUCE Colonel.

On tuesday, the 26th day of June 1759, the several captains, in obedience to the foregoing orders, assembled their companies, and marched them to Devizes, where they were met by lieutenant Raper of the 67th regiment of foot, who was sent by major general Holmes, to attend and assist them during their march.

The battalion being thus embodied, and put on the same footing, as his Majesty's regular troops, Maynard Guerin esquire was appointed agent to it, ensign William Trevannion, pay-master, lieutenant Edward Montagu, quarter-master, and Mr. William Peck, adjutant, Mr. Wade having resigned.

Previous to the battalion's assembling, colonel lord Bruce received the following warrant under his Majesty's sign manual, authorizing him to hold courts martial;

To our right trusty and well beloved Thomas lord Bruce, colonel of our regiment of Wiltshire militia, or to the lieutenant colonel, or major of our said regiment.

GEORGE R.

Whereas an act has been made and passed in the last session of parliament, for punishing mutiny and desertion, and for the better payment of the army and their quarters, from and after the 24th day of March 1759, untill the 25th day of March 1760; And whereas by the acts, for the better ordering the militia forces

1759 forces in that part of Great Britain called England, it is enacted, that the officers of the militia and private militia men shall, during the time of their being embodied and drawn out, be subjected and made liable to all such articles of war, rules, and regulations, as shall be then by act of parliament in force, for the discipline and good government of any of our forces in Great Britain; And whereas agreeably to the said acts, We have ordered the militia of the county of Wilts to be embodied and drawn out; We have therefore thought fit hereby to authorize and direct you, from time to time, to call, assemble, and hold courts martial; which courts martial are to be constituted according to the said acts of parliament; and the president of such courts martial shall not be the commander in chief, or governor of the garrison, where the offender shall be tried, nor under the degree of a field officer, and to meet at such time or times, as you shall appoint, for the punishing such mutiny, desertion, false musters, and other crimes, as have or shall happen in our regiment under your command. And We do hereby further authorize and empower the said courts martial, to hear and examine all such matters and informations, as shall be brought before them, touching the misbehaviour of any officer or private militia man by mutiny, desertion, false musters, or otherwise as aforesaid; And to proceed in the tryal of such offenders, and in giving of sentence and inflicting punishment, according to the powers and directions mentioned in the said acts of parliament and articles of war, which are hereunto annexed: And for your so doing this shall be your warrant, as long as our said militia shall continue embodied and drawn out, and no longer. Given at our court at Kensington, this 23d day of June 1759, in the thirty third year of our reign.

By his Majesty's command,

REGI-

REGIMENTAL ORDERS.

Devizes, June 26. 1759

Parole Wilshire.

A serjeant, corporal, and 12 men, to mount guard, immediately, at the new hall. A serjeant to warn the publicans, by beat of drum, not to give the men any credit.

The rolls of the several companies to be called over, every morning, at the beating the troop, and every evening, at the beating the retreat. The men for guard to draw up, very clean, with their arms, on the right of their respective companies, at the time of calling the rolls, in the morning. An officer of a company to attend the roll calling. The knapfacks to be delivered to the men, to-morrow morning. An orderly book to be provided for every company; to be kept by the orderly serjeant. Lieutenant Egerton, 2 serjeants, 2 corporals, 1 drum, and 30 private men, to parade for guard, to-morrow morning, immediately after roll calling.

Devizes, June 27.

Parole Winchester.

The men to parade in the green, at 7 o'clock this evening, if the weather permits, in order that the articles of war may be read to them: The guinea a man, advance money, will be paid to them at the same time. The officers of the several companies are desired, to recommend it to their men, to compleat their necessaries, to 3 shirts, 4 pair of stockings, and 2 pair of shoes, out of that money. The men are ordered, not to let down the cocks of their hats, on any account whatever; and to keep the skirts of their coats constantly hooked back.

The guard, that mounted this day, to be relieved to-morrow morning, at 9 o'clock, and the same number of men to parade for that duty: Ensign Biggs for this guard, which is to compose a rear guard to the regiment, and to keep 50 yards distance from the battalion, and not suffer any stragglers to stay behind. One officer, 2 serjeants, 2 corporals, 1 drum, and 40 private men, to be ready, at 10 o'clock, to-morrow night: This guard is to attend the loading and unloading the baggage, and march with it: Lieutenant Vilett for this guard. Each captain to appoint a carefull man of his own company, to take care of the baggage belonging to it, and constantly to assist, to load and unload it, and see it safely lodged.

The general to beat, to-morrow morning, at 3 o'clock, the assembly, at half past, immediately after, the regiment is to assemble, at the market place, in order to march towards Salisbury.

It

- 1759 It is lord Bruce's order, that the baggage guard ordered to-morrow night, parade to-morrow morning at 2 o' clock, to assist to load the waggons, and conduct them to Salisbury, Ensign Biggs for this duty. The guard at present to be rear guard to the regiment, to-morrow morning.

Letter from the deputy secretary at war to colonel lord Bruce.

My lord,

War office, June 27, 1759.

Some disputes having arisen at Winchester, concerning the quartering the troops in that town, I have the honour, in the absence of the secretary at war, to send your lordship the enclosed order, for the battalion of militia under your lordship's command to remain at the Devizes, untill further order.

I have the honour to be &c.

THO: TYRWHITT.

To the right honourable colonel lord Bruce, or officer commanding the Wiltshire regiment of militia.

It is his Majesty's pleasure, that (notwithstanding the order of the 21st instant) you cause the militia of the county of Wilts under your command, to remain at the Devizes, and Devizes Green; where they are to be quartered, untill further order; And it is his Majesty's further pleasure, that if the said militia should be already marched from Devizes, that you cause them to return thither, or proceed to Salisbury, as you shall think most convenient, (acquainting this office to which place you march) where they are to be quartered and remain, untill further order; Wherein the civil magistrates and all others concerned, are to be assisting in providing quarters, impressing carriages, and otherwise, as there shall be occasion. Given at the war office this 27th June, 1759.

By his Majesty's command,

In the absence of the secretary at war.

THO: TYRWHITT.

Salis-

Salisbury, June 28. 1759

Parole Devizes.

Lord Bruce recommends it to the officers, to be particularly carefull, that their men are not seen in the fireets, after 9 o' clock in the evening; for this purpose an officer of a company is desired to visit their quarters.

Roll calling to be at 9 o' clock to-morrow morning, in the evening, at sun set; to parade in the market place.

An officer's guard, to consist of the same number as mounted yesterday, to parade in the market place, at 5 o' clock in the evening, and to relieve that already on duty: Lieutenant Vilett for this duty. A guard also to mount to-morrow morning after roll calling, of the same number of men, as before: Ensign Wansey for this duty.

Salisbury, June 29.

Parole Marlborough.

Lord Bruce desires, that the captains and commanding officers of companies will give directions to the serjeants and corporals, to see that the men, whenever they parade for duty, come properly dressed in their uniforms, and not to wear any thing else.

A guard to mount to-morrow morning after roll calling, of the same numbers as to day. Lieutenant Bracher for this duty.

No officer must permit a man to go from quarters, without a written pass signed by the commanding officer. The men that are sick at present, and may happen to be so hereafter, are to apply to Mr. Maurice Bayley, apothecary in Silver Street, in the Green Market; but no man is to go, without first acquainting one of his officers, and that officer is to send a serjeant or corporal with him.

The captains will please to direct the men of their companies, to be diligent in learning the method of cleaning their arms, and to keep them in constant repair.

At roll calling this evening, the men are to bring their firelocks with them, in order that they may be inspected into, and such as want mending, to be done immediately.

One serjeant and one corporal from each company to march to-morrow morning, to Winchester, and to stay there, to instruct themselves in their duty: Fourteen days subsistence to be advanced to them: Each captain to appoint that serjeant and corporal to go, which he thinks, will make the best use of his time, and behave in such a manner, as to do credit to the Wiltshire corps.

Salisbury, June 30.

Parole London.

The officers of each company to order their serjeants and corporals, to take out their awkward men and drill them this afternoon, and do the same twice every day, during the time the regiment stays in Salisbury. Captains are at liberty to exercise their men in whole companies, as often as they shall think proper.

Roll calling to be every day, at 9 o' clock in the morning, and at sun set in the evening. A guard to mount to-morrow morning after roll calling, consisting of the same number of men, as before: Ensign Saunders for this duty. The men to come to the parade, to-morrow morning at roll calling, properly dressed in their uniforms, with their white gaiters, shoes black, and powdered, and proceed from thence in regular order to divine service. All the officers are desired to march with their own men. The men to parade for church, at half an hour after 9 o' clock: The drums to beat at 8.

Salisbury, July 1.

Parole Wilton.

The men, that parade for guard, are to be brought there by a serjeant or corporal of a company, and he to remain on the parade, untill the guard is made up, and particularly to observe and see, that the men are properly dressed and clean for all duty, and to give their names on paper to the adjutant.

At roll calling to-morrow morning, every captain or commanding officer of a company, to make a return in writing, of the number of officers of their respective companies, and their names properly spelt; the number of their serjeants, drummers, and private men; the number of men present and fit for duty, and to take notice, if any are sick or absent.

A serjeant to parade to-morrow morning at roll calling, properly dressed, in white gaiters, and with arms: This serjeant is to attend lord Bruce all the day, to receive such orders, as his lordship may have occasion to give.

After orders.

A division of the 8th regiment being on the march from the west of England, and directed to march through this place, in their way, lord Bruce thinks it best for the service, and for the accommodation of the regiment, that five companies, viz. lieutenant colonel Northey's, captains Goddard's, Beckford's, Hufsey's and Long's, do march to-morrow morning precisely at 4 o' clock; to parade at 3. Lieutenant colonel Northey's and captain Goddard's are to go to Stockbridge, captain Beckford's to Downton, captain Hufsey's Hussey's to Wilton, and captain Long's to Amesbury: To continue till wednesday morning, unless they receive orders to the contrary; at which time they are to retire to the city of Salisbury. Ensign Arnold for guard to-morrow. Those men, that are now upon guard, belonging to the companies, that march to-morrow morning, are to be relieved by those, that remain in Salisbury, directly. The five companies that stay, are to parade at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning, with all their things, in order to be new billeted in a part of the town by themselves.

Salisbury, July 2.

Parole Pembroke.

The usual guard to mount at 9 o'clock, consisting of tall men, well disciplined. The orderly serjeants and corporals, to attend the men of their respective companies, and see their hair well powdered, their shoes clean, and that they do not presume to leave the guard, till discharged by the adjutant, to whom they are to give a list of the names of their men.

Lieutenant Sutton for guard to-morrow.

Salisbury, July 3.

Parole Mompesson.

A return from each company to be given in directly to lieutenant Montagu, of the number of men that understand to make cartouches. At roll calling this evening, the men are to bring their arms with them; which the officers of the respective companies will carefully inspect, and such as are out of order, to be immediately repaired.

The officers of the several companies are for the future to confine themselves, to the instructing their men in marching and wheeling with great exactness; to be particularly attentive to their dressing well and covering their file leaders: They are likewise to practice, as frequently as possible, the priming, loading, and firing motions, and to take care, that the men level exactly. The present method of marching being thought too fast, it is ordered, that the officers direct their serjeants, to instruct their men to move much slower.

After orders.

Captain Montagu's company to parade precisely at 7 o'clock, at the Green Croft, with their arms: The officers of the other companies are desired by lord Bruce, to attend there at the same time; and that they order the serjeants and corporals of their respective companies, to attend likewise.

Lieutenant Duke for guard to morrow.

Salisbury, July 5.

Parole Montgomery.

All the officers are desired to attend at the town hall, at 12 o'clock, with their fuses. The serjeants and corporals, of every compacompany are to attend with firelocks, at the Green Croft, at 4 o'clock 1759 clock this afternoon, to be instructed in the proper method of priming and loading, which is to be practiced this afternoon, at Harnham hill, till the men appear steady in it. The whole battalion to be under arms, to-morrow morning at 5 o'clock, on Harnham hill. Ensign Talk for guard to-morrow.

After orders.

The regiment to parade to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock, in the market place, with white gaiters, and powdered hair, cloaths and hats well brushed, and in every manner perfectly clean.

Lord Bruce recommends it to the officers, to make their serje-ants go round to the mens quarters, and examine their arms, early to-morrow morning, that they may be in perfect order, when the companies parade. All the officers are desired to be at the council house, to-morrow morning at 7 o'clock, and to bring their fu-sees with them. The serjeants to order the men, that made the cartouches to day, to be at the same place, to-morrow morning at 2 o'clock, and to inspect them, till 4000 cartouches are done.

Salisbury, July 6.

Parole Edward.

The colonel's, the major's, captain Lambert's, captain Aw-dry's, and captain Montagu's companies are to march, to-morrow morning at 3 o'clock, under the command of the colonel, to Andover; the lieutenant colonel's and captain Goddard's, under the command of the lieutenant colonel, to Rumsey; captain Long's, to Stockbridge, captain Beckford's, to Bishop's Waltham, and captain Hussey's, to Alresford. The first troop to beat, at half after 3 o'clock, the second, at 4, and immediately to call the rolls, and march. Ensign Saunders to have the command of the rear guard to the companies ordered to Andover, which is to consist, of 1 serjeant, 1 corporal, and 20 men: Ensign Wansey for the baggage guard, with 1 serjeant, 1 corporal, and 20 men.
 The quarter-master is to provide 10 waggons for the baggage, to be at the town hall, by 3 o'clock. A serjeant of each company is to go round the quarters, this evening, and take care, that they are all paid.

After orders.

Andover, July 7.

Parole

The rolls of every company to be called, at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning, and the returns of the absent to be given in. The men to appear clean, and well dressed, and to attend divine service, morning and evening: To be marched by the officers of their respective companies.

Andover, July 8.

Parole Winchester.

The general to beat to-morrow morning, at 1 o'clock, the assembly, at half an hour after, and march immediately. Lord Bruce expects, the officers commanding companies will recommend it strongly to their men, to preserve great order in their march; that no man quit his rank or file; and that they are perfectly, clean and well dressed. A guard, consisting of a subaltern, 2 serjeants, 2 corporals, 1 drum, and 24 men, to parade in the rear of the five companies, to-morrow morning, to march as rear and baggage guard; lieutenant Stonehouse for this duty.

Winchester, July 9.Parole Wolfe.

Officers for guard to-morrow:

King's house: Lieutenant Eyre, ensign Biggs.

Piquet: Lieutenant Duke: Both to parade, at half an hour past 7 o'clock, and march off at 8.

As the retaining the prisoners within the bounds prescribed them is of the utmost consequence, the officers and soldiers on guard must be extremely vigilant and alert. In the places most exposed, or where there is a probability of the prisoners attempting an escape, double centinels must be posted. Patroles should be sent, every hour in the night, from the king's house guard, round the centinels, to keep them watchfull and diligent, and to have the earlier intelligence of any attempts of the prisoners. Upon any alarm, the guard to get under arms, with the utmost expedition, and part of it march to the place, where an attempt is apprehended. When the officer commanding the guard is, from some particular circumstances, fully convinced, that an attempt is to be made, he should instantly acquaint the commanding officer of the regiment with it, and at the same time, order the drums to beat to arms, which is to be answered by the other drums, in the different quarters of the town; the regiment is then to repair, with their arms and accoutrements, to their alarm post, at the west gate, near the prison; As the companies assemble, they must reinforce the guard, and be marched to the places, where the prisoners may attempt attempt to force a passage. No drum is to be allowed to beat after taptoo, unless in the case already mentioned, and whenever any is found to disobey this order, he will be punished. 1759

When the prisoners are locked up at night, the officer of the guard is to go, with a file of men himself, and send his serjeant with another, to examine carefully the particular places, where there is a possibility of any of them concealing themselves. As the prisoners have been frequently detected, in endeavouring to undermine the foundation, under cover of blankets fixed upon poles in the airing ground, under pretence of sheltering themselves from the heat of the sun, officers upon guard are required, to suffer nothing to be fixed in the said ground, that may prevent the centinels from perceiving their intentions.

Piquet: Lieutenant Sutton. In waiting to mount on thursday, lieutenant Stonehouse, ensign Arnold, and ensign Webb.

The serjeants and corporals to parade this afternoon, at the west gate, with arms and accoutrements, at 4 o'clock precisely, in order to practice, and perfect themselves in the exercise. The serjeants, corporals, and private men are to be very punctual, in the time of parading, and none to be absent, but such as have leave.

A detachment, of a corporal and 4 men, to parade immediately, to convey a deserter, of colonel Lambton's regiment, to Southampton, and after performance of the said duty, the detachment is to return to their former quarters.

The 5 companies on duty here to assemble, near the west gate, at half past 4 o'clock to-morrow morning, in order to practice firing with ball. Each company to take a target into the field with them. The serjeants of each company to prepare 6 rounds of ball cartouches per man, and to deliver them to the companies, as soon as paraded. A return of the sick of each company, to be given to Mr. Lipscomb, apothecary, opposite the George, specifying where, each sick man is quartered.

The officers on guard are to go their rounds, every two hours, betwixt 10 at night and 4 in the morning, except the grand rounds, which will go, betwixt 10 and 12 at night. All the centinels, after taptoo, are to rest their arms to every round, that passes by them, after having challenged, and bid the round pass, except such centinels, who have orders to stop them, before they come too near the guard, which is to be done, in the following manner: Upon the rounds approaching, the centinel challenges, who comes here

1759 here; the rounds making answer, rounds, the centinel asks, what round, upon which the rounds reply, grand rounds, or rounds of the guard; the centinel then orders, stand rounds, turn out the guard; as soon as the guard is turned out, a serjeant advances, and challenging, orders the serjeant of the rounds to advance, who is to give him the counter-sign or parole; having received the parole, the officer or non-commissioned officer commanding the guard orders, advance rounds, and makes his guard rest their arms.

The officer commanding the king's house guard sends a serjeant, every two hours, quite round the prison, who is to answer, upon being challenged, patrole: He is to observe, if the centinels are watchfull and alert upon their posts, and report those deficient, in their duty, to the officer commanding the guard.

The officer commanding the airing ground guard will take care, when the relief is called out, that the corporal takes only one half of the relief at a time, leaving the remainder opposite the gate, till he has relieved the first half, which, when relieved, he will leave opposite the said gate, till the other half is relieved, and then ground or lodge their arms together.

The following centinels are private centinels and not to challenge; viz. at the black hole under the guard room, two; in the bottom, on the east side, two; upon the steps going into the airing ground, one; in the vaults or arches, on the east side, two; and at the black hole, where the French prisoners are confined, two: As the rounds or patrols approach those centinels, to shew they are alert, they should clap on their cartouch boxes, and be answered in the same manner from the patrol or round.

¶ At this court martial the 4 following prisoners were tried, viz.

John Faulkner, a drummer in the 3d company, who was found guilty, of behaving to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, by coming into the field without breeches, and his offence being aggravated by his insolent behaviour to the court, he was sentenced to receive 200 lashes and be drummed out of the regiment. This sentence was put in execution, the same morning at dismounting the guard.

Robert Wraxworthy, a corporal in the 5th company, who was found guilty, of behaving to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, by raising a disturbance in the company, and persuading the men not to go to camp, and was sentenced, to be degraded and confined for 10 days in the black hole. This sentence was confirmed, and carried into execution.

James Bridle, a private soldier of the 5th company, who was found guilty of the same offence, as Wraxworthy, and had his sentence confirmed; which was to be confined, only for 24 hours, in the black hole.

Thomas Castleman, a private soldier of the 8th company, who was found guilty of behaving to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, by endeavouring to rescue a prisoner, and was sentenced to receive 50 lashes, but was forgiven, on account of his good character.

Orders

1759 Orders for conducting the duty of the guard upon the prisoners of war, at the King's house at Winchester, recommended by doctor Maxwell, commissioner for sick and wounded seamen, and for exchanging prisoners of war.

I.

That they be very watchfull to prevent any escapes of the prisoners, and if any attempts are made of that kind, to endeavour to secure such prisoners, and to deliver them to the turnkey.

II.

That they assist the agent or any person employed under him, by giving him a sufficient number of men, when he may desire it, to put a stop to any riotous behaviour or other disturbances in the prison, or for extinguishing the lights, or preventing any other irregularities.

III.

That the centinels at the great gate be very vigilant, in seeing that no ropes or any tools be conveyed into the wicket, or any other part of the prison, which may facilitate the escapes of the prisoners; and that no spiritous liquors be upon any account allowed to be sold.

IV.

That nothing be suffered to be sold or handed to the prisoners any where, but at the wicket of the great gate.

V.

That no prisoner be allowed to come out of the prison or hospital without a ticket signed by the agent or surgeon, which ticket is to be first shewed to the officer on guard.

VI.

That if any centinel observes any light in any of the wards of the prison at any time, or hears any noise after 10 o'clock at night, he is immediately to give notice of it in such a manner, as the turnkey may be acquainted with it, that he may take the necessary steps upon it.

VII.

That the centinels suffer no idle people to damage the pallisades or any part about the prison or hospital, or allow them to come into the prison.

VIII.

That the centinels are to see, that the prisoners do not touch the pallisades or damage the lamps or lamp posts.

My lord,

War office, 1. September 1759.

I have the honour to signify to your lordship his Majesty's pleasure, that, for the present, the several regiments of militia shall roll together, whenever they meet, without any fixed rank or precedence of any one regiment before another; and to prevent any difficulty or dispute on that subject, his Majesty has been pleased to direct, that the regiment of militia, which arrives first in any camp

1759 camp, garrison or quarters, shall have seniority there, the next which arrives, being deemed junior to them, and so on in like manner with respect to other regiments which may successively to each other march into camp, garrison or quarters.

And whereas the several regiments of militia are composed of different numbers, both officers and men, it is his Majesty's farther pleasure, that each battalion shall do duty for, or furnish to the several commands, in proportion, as near as may be, to the number of men and officers of which they ought to consist according to their respective establishments.

Lord Bruce orders, that his commendation and thanks be immediately given to all his officers and men, and to those of the 67th regiment, for their great alacrity and readiness to support him in his endeavours to prevent the prisoners escape last night, and to prevent any disorder or confusion, that may attend any future alarm, will have the following orders established and observed, which are to be read to the men, this evening and to-morrow morning, at their roll calling. After the alarm, by firing 3 muskets from the king's house, has been answered by the centinel of the quarter guard, the quarter guard drum must immediately beat to arms, and all the drums of the regiment are, as soon as possible, to do the same; upon which the men are to fall in at their tents, three deep, and when the companies are formed and ready to march, the senior officers are to attend the commanding officer, who will always be in the center of the front, to receive his orders. In the mean time the junior officer or the serjeants, in his absence, are to make the men fix their bayonets, but not to prime and load, till ordered by the commanding officer, least in the hurry accidents should arise. Great care is to be taken by the serjeants, that the firelocks are never put up without flints. The officer of the guard is to send to camp the keys of the wickets, on the south and west sides of the airing ground, as soon as the prisoners are are turned in, and deliver them to the officer of the quarter guard. 1759

Upon any alarm, the officer of the guard is to take particular care, that a sufficient number of centinels are placed at the gate and other avenues to the prison, to prevent the inhabitants of the town from coming in and creating confusion. Upon their return to the camp, the men are to take their arms to their respective tents, least the alarm should be repeated.

Lord Bruce hopes, that last night's experience will convince the officers, how necessary it is, that the men should not be permitted to lie out of camp, and he expects, that the officers will be very particular, in having exact returns made of the absent; that they may be punished; that the officers will likewise acquaint their respective companies, at roll calling, if any man is found out of camp after retreat beating, without leave in writing, he will be punished in the most exemplary manner.

To visit the sick this day: Lieutenant Maundrell. In waiting, ensign Webb.

The companies to be under arms, ready formed for exercise, at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning. To exercise in battalion.

Upon complaint, that several sick men of the regiment are quartered in the town of Winchester, where it is impossible, the surgeon can give his attendance, or they can be taken proper care of, lord Bruce orders, that all such men, as are fit to be removed, are immediately sent to the regimental hospital, and that all men, taken ill in camp, are immediately carried to be examined by the surgeon or his mate, and that a return be made to the surgeon, of all the men quartered in town, who are judged unfit to be removed, specifying their names and where quartered, that he may give them proper attendance.

Lord Bruce has appointed corporal Brown, of major Young's company, to be a serjeant in the said company, in the room of serjeant Kellow, discharged, and corporal Scott, of captain Hufsey's company, to be a serjeant in the same company, in the room of serjeant Jebbould, discharged.

To prevent any delay, that may arise from the execution of former orders, in case of an alarm from the king's house, the following rules are for the future to be observed.

The

1759 The companies are to be formed in their streets by their respective officers, as expeditiously as possible, and as soon as they are formed, they are to march to the king's house, and take their posts in the several places appointed for each company. Captain Baldwin's company and three companies of colonel Berkley's battalion, under the command of one of their field officers, are to take post on the east side, and the other five companies, under the command of the other field officer, are to be disposed of, as follows; two companies, in the hospital airing ground, one, on the south side of the passage, that leads to the portico, another, on the north side of the same passage, and the remaining company to continue in the same place, or to be in the north court, as circumstances shall require. The colonel's, lieutenant colonel's, captain Goddard's, and captain Lambert's companies, of lord Bruce's regiment, are to be under the command of the lieutenant colonel, and marched as soon as possible to the inner court of the king's house; the major's and captain Beckford's are to take post in the airing ground, opposite the steps going to the necessary houses; captains Awdry's and Hufley's, without the pales, on the north side of the airing ground, and captains Montagu's and Long's, on the south side: These last six companies to be under the command of the major, but if any of the field officers of either corps shall happen to be absent, then the several commands, above ordered, are to be taken by the several senior officers of each respective corps. To prevent the troops from interfering, in their march to the king's house, colonel Berkley's battalion is to go through the west gate.

It having been found dangerous for the men to fix their bayonets, before they march, it is ordered, that for the future, before the arms are lodged in the bell tents, they do fix their bayonets with the scabbards on, and take their belts to their tents, and that they take off their bayonets, on any alarm given, and not fix them again, till they are arrived at their respective posts, unless circumstances should make it necessary. The former order, not to prime and load, is strictly to be observed.

No soldier in camp is to fire his musket, when the alarm is given from the king's house, except the centinels at the quarter guards; nor is any soldier to give the alarm at the king's house, but those appointed by the officer commanding there, and which is always to be done from the high ground, near the hospital. When the officer commanding there shall think the assistance of the piquets alone will be sufficient, he is to direct three muskets to be discharged, but if he judges more will be necessary, and that the intent of the prisoners to escape is general, then he is to direct six muskets to be discharged, and the whole camp is immediately to march. The piquets are to march immediately, on the alarm given, and without further orders, join the main guard at the king's house.

*Winchester camp, October 17.*Parole Winchester.

The general to beat to-morrow morning at half past 5 o'clock, at which time the men are to strike their tents carefully and pack them up as close as possible. Upon the troop beating the men are to assemble at the parade with their knapfacks, haversacks, canteens, kettles, arms and tent poles; and march as soon as possible. The quartermaster is to provide 13 waggons with 5 able horses, to carry the regiment's baggage to Andover and Stockbridge. The following companies are to march the Stockbridge road, under the command of major Young, viz. the major's, captain Montagu's and captain Long's.

The sick of the regiment not able to march will assemble at the west gate, to-morrow morning at 7 o'clock, where 2 waggons will be provided to carry the whole the Stockbridge road. The surgeon is required to attend, to prevent those with infectious disorders or other improper persons from going. Ensign Merrewether and the surgeon's mate, with a serjeant, corporal and 1 man per company, to remain at Winchester, to attend the sick.

The officer now upon the quarter guard, with the non-commissioned officers and men of those companies, that march to Andover, to be the baggage guard for that division. Lieutenant Vilett, one serjeant, one corporal, one drum and 21 men, for the rear guard for the division to Andover. The men to be clean dressed for church, to-morrow morning at roll calling.

To the right honourable lord Bruce, colonel of the Wiltshire regiment of militia.

My lord,

War office, 20th October 1759.

It having been represented, that the regiments of militia, having no non-effective men, have no fund for defraying the expences of an hospital for such of the sick men, as cannot properly be taken care of in quarters, His Majesty has been graciously pleased to order, that the several regiments of militia should receive the same allowance for an hospital, which is given to regiments encamped, which is, seven pounds and ten shillings, a month.

This sum therefore will be paid to your regiment monthly, by Mr. John Cathcart, director of the army hospital, for defraying the expence of house hire, nurses wages, and all other contingent charges of an hospital for such sick men, as cannot properly be taken care of in quarters.

To colonel, Thomas lord Bruce, at the Devizes.

My lord,

War office, 11th December, 1759.

It having been represented to the King, in behalf of the captains of the several regiments of embodied militia, that they are subject to various contingent expences on account of their companies, which they have no fund to defray, and that it will be for the good of his Majesty's service, and for the ease and convenience of the said captains, if they may be allowed to receive the pay of a certain number of non-effective men in each company, for defraying the contingent expences of the same, as is the practice in his Majesty's other forces, I have the honour to acquaint your lordship, that the King, in consequence of the above representation, has been pleased to order, that the captains of the militia, when embodied, shall not for the future be obliged to compleat their companies to the establishment, but that they shall be permitted to have one non-effective man out of every twenty five, rank and file, of which their said companies consist, whose pay shall be issued to the said captains, for defraying the contingent expences of their respective companies, according to the custom of the army.

The

1759 The contingent expences, which are to be paid out of this fund, are in particular, the repair of arms and accoutrements, and the hospital charges, for house rent, nurses &c. besides other accidental losses, which may fall upon the captains by the death or desertion of their men. It is intended that this allowance shall take place from Christmas next.

With regard to the expences, which shall have been incurred by the captains, on the above heads, before Christmas, it is proposed, that each captain shall receive a sum of money equal to the amount of the non-effective pay, which he would have received according to the present regulation, from the time of his company's being embodied to the 25th instant, in full satisfaction of his contingent expences, during that period. The money, which has been received by each regiment on account of an hospital, at the rate of seven pounds ten shillings per month, must be charged on the side of the publick in defalcation of the claims of the captains for these expences.

I shall order the accounts of the several regiments to be stated by the agents as soon as possible after Christmas, that the non-effective and vacant pay, which shall be in their hands, may be applied, as far as it will go, to the reimbursement of the captains. The remainder of what shall be due to them for their expences to that time, will be made good by his Majesty's warrant.

I have the honour to be &c.

His Majesty having been pleased to order a general court martial to be held at the Horse Guards, for the trial of lord George Sackville, for having disobeyed the orders of Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, at the battle of Minden, 1st August 1759, lord George Sackville being then a lieutenant general and appointed commander in chief of his Majesty's forces, in his army serving under the command of Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, commander in chief of his Majesty's said army, whose orders and directions the said lord George Sackville was enjoined and required to obey, both by his Majesty's commission and his instructions, dated, 1st October 1758; the court consisted of,

The following is the sentence of the said general court martial.

That Lord George Sackville is guilty of disobeying the orders of Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick, whom he was by his commission and instructions directed to obey, as commander in chief, according to the rules of war; and it is the farther opinion of this court, that the said lord George Sackville is, and he is hereby adjudged, unfit to serve His Majesty in any military capacity whatever: Which sentence His Majesty has been pleased to confirm.

It is His Majesty's pleasure, that the above sentence be given out in publick orders, that officers being convinced, that neither high birth nor great employments can shelter offences of such a nature, and that seeing, they are subject to censures much worse than death, to a man who has any sense of honour, they may avoid the fatal consequences arising from disobedience of orders.

Camp near Winchester, June 13.Parole Effingham.

The old cloathing to be delivered to the men this evening, that it may be serviceable to them in their tents, and be worn in foraging and working, but no man to dispose of it, on pain of severe punishment. No soldiers to appear without their buckle garters on and hair tied, and when for duty, to parade with their night caps in their pockets, in order to preserve their hats, which they must have particular attention to upon all occasions.

Lieutenant Egerton for the piquet this evening, which is to consist of 1 subaltren, 2 serjeants, 2 corporals, 1 drum and 30 private. The quarter guard to parade, to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock: Ensign Webb for this duty.

Camp near Winchester, June 14.Parole Ligonier

The commanding officers of companies are desired to have the remaining part of the cloathing fitted, and not to suffer any man, whose cloaths are not yet fitted, to wear any part till the whole is compleated. Shoes and stockings to be delivered, this evening at 6 o'clock, to such men as have their cloathing compleat. The orderly serjeants to attend to receive them.

The piquet to consist of a captain, 2 subaltrens, 2 serjeants, 2 corporals, 2 drums and 48 private, the quarter guard of a subaltren, 1 serjeant, 1 corporal, 1 drum and 30 private, and the rear guard of 1 serjeant, 1 corporal and 12 private.

Piquet this evening: Captain Goddard, lieutenant Maundrell and lieutenant Vilet.

Quarter guard to-morrow: Lieutenant Egerton.

The band to beat for divine service, at half past 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. The men to parade in the streets.

Camp near Winchester, June 15.Parole Minden.

No soldier is to leave the camp after taptow beating, without a permit in writing from the commanding officer. Any soldier detected in a breach of this order will be severely punished. The centinels upon the flanks of the encampment are to prevent all persons, except officers, from going across or along the officers streets, and are to challenge all persons, that pass or repass after dusk in the evening.

The grenadiers upon all occasions, except roll calling, are to parade to the right of the encampment, at open order, the front rank advanced to the first line of parade.

The

The three companies upon the right of the regiment, viz. lieutenant colonel Northey's, captain Goddard's and captain Beckford's to be drawn up in their streets, formed for exercise, to-morrow morning at 5 o'clock, to appear clean, in their new cloathing and brown gaiters. The officers may or may not attend, as it is most agreeable to them. The grenadier company to parade upon the right of the regiment, at half an hour past 5 o'clock, dressed, as is directed for the other three companies, and to be exercised by the grenadier officers. The recruits and awkward men of each company to be exercised by the serjeant major and serjeant Pritchard, twice a day, in the rear of the encampment, viz. at 5 o'clock in the morning and 5 in the afternoon. Lifts to be given to the serjeant major, this evening at roll calling, and any man, that does not attend punctually at the time appointed, to be confined and reported to the commanding officer.

Piquet this evening: Captain Lambert, lieutenant Duke and lieutenant Bracher.

Quarter guard to-morrow: Ensign Trevannion.

A regimental court martial to be held at the president's tent, to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock: Captain Goddard president; lieutenants Maundrell, Egerton and Vilett, and ensign Webb members.

¶ At this court martial William Hayward of captain Beckford's company was ordered to be confined 4 days in the quarter guard, on bread and water only, for being drunk, and behaving in a disorderly manner, but his sentence was not confirmed by the commanding officer, as thought not adequate to his crime.

1760 Piquet this evening: Captain Beckford, lieutenant Jervoise and ensign Webb.

Quarter guard to-morrow: Lieutenant Vilett.

After orders.

Twenty men of each company, that are new cloathed, will be permitted to go to the races each day, by turns, under the command of one of their serjeants and corporals, who are to be answerable for their behaving in a decent manner, and for their returning to camp together before roll calling in the evening. Any soldier, that is seen there without leave, will be punished. The rolls will be called once or twice in the afternoon, in order to detect them. Four o'clock in the afternoon will be a proper time for those, who have leave to go from camp.

Each

Each company is to be divided immediately into four squads, 1760 with a serjeant and corporal to each squad, and squad rolls are to be given in this evening at roll calling, for the commanding officer. As it has been observed, that many of the men begin to grow slovenly, and that part of the cloathing is very dirty, particularly the breeches, it is therefore ordered, that no man do wear any part of the new cloathing, except when ordered, or on duty. The serjeants are to be answerable, that their squads obey this order.

It having been found upon further inquiry, that many of the men have not brought their old breeches, it is thought necessary to repeat, that, till they are provided with that article, none of them are permitted to work, which otherwise they are allowed to do, when off duty, and not attending exercise or roll calling. The same rule to be observed with regard to coats and waistcoats. No soldier to be permitted to lie out of camp, but in case of illness, and then the surgeon to be made acquainted with it, that he may know where to attend them. The six companies upon the left of the regiment, to assemble in their streets, to-morrow morning at 5 o'clock, for exercise. The piquet and men for guard to be included always, and the whole to appear clean and in brown gaiters. Field returns to be prepared, to be given to the adjutant, as soon as the men are formed.

1760 The horses to the camp to be mustered, on thursday morning at 7 o' clock, by the commissary Charles Buchanan, on the ground the Gloucestershire regiment was out on this day. The regiments to muster according to their rank, beginning with the 34th, allowing half an hour for each regiment. A list of the officers names to be sent by their respective regiments to the major of brigade, to-morrow at troop beating, to be by him transmitted to the commissary.

Complaints are made to the general of the mischief done by the soldiery to the corn and hedges adjacent to the camp. A proper guard will be put at every place, they do mischief at, with orders to secure any of the men committing any irregularities or doing spoyl to the farmers, who will be punished with the utmost severity. These safe guards will be increased on every complaint. The men having more duty, will have less time for these irregularities. More frequent roll callings are recommended to the commanding officers, particularly at any time in the night, before the rounds, as the mischief is supposed to be done in the night; and it is desired, that the officers, whenever they see the men coming into camp with knapsacks or haversacks, any other way, but from the town, will order them to searched, to see, if there is any thing not honestly come by, in order to their immediate detection and punishment. Non-commissioned officers are to observe strictly this order, in case they see any thing of this kind, and no officer present.

No soldier shall on any account leave the camp after gun firing, except by the particular leave, or on business of an officer, who is to mention in the pass, where the soldier is going, and how long his absence is for.

Complaint having been made by a gentleman, that he has received great damage to his corn and quickset hedges by some officers in shooting, whose names he chooses to conceal, the general, to prevent as much as possible all complaints for the future, particularly orders, that no non-commissioned officer or soldier be suffered to go out, officers servants excepted, who may attend their masters, but must not shoot. The general hopes, that those gentlemen 1760 gentlemen, who have committed this unneighbourly act, will not repeat it; and he recommends it to them, to let the fields be more cleared, before they shoot, and then only to do it, where they have permission, which they cannot fail of having for asking for.

Major Shirley recommends it to the adjutants of the several regiments, to send a corporal to adjutant Hilton, in order to learn the few motions, in which the regiments differ, at any time Monday morning, that will be most convenient. He likewise recommends to them, to learn their men the quick way of coming down from the shoulder, when the flanks are covered, and the ranks closed for firing, at which time only, the quick way of making ready is to be used. It will be necessary for the officers of the several regiments to practice the standing and marching salute, which is recommended to be set about immediately, that no time may be lost in getting the line ready to act together, as soon as possible. the the preparative, upon which they are to march into the rear, where they are to be formed and exercised under the directions of major Shirley. 1763

Orders for a general field day.

When the line is ordered out, the regiments are to be told off for forming six deep, sub and grand divisions, and wings, before they march from their lines of parade, with the drummers in two divisions, upon the right and left of their regiments. As soon as the regiments come to their ground, they are to be formed six deep, dressing with the right hand regiment. When the officers take their posts in the rear, the supernumerary serjeants and drummers are to march through their several intervals, and as soon as they get to their ground in front, which is fifteen paces in the rear of the exercising officer, they face inwards and divide the ground equally, covering the front of their regiments, dressing by the right. When the manual is over, the regiments are to be prepared for the charge by their respective officers: A ruffle will be given them as a signal to begin. The flanks being covered, and the battalion fronted, a ruffle will be given as a caution to fix bayonets and shoulder. A flam will be given for each word of command. After the line is shouldered, the next flam will be to prime and load, and the line, when they come with the right hand under the lock, are to wait for a flam to shoulder. A ruffle, upon which the officers are to advance their arms, and go to the right about; and on the flam, the rear ranks close to the front. On the preparative, the whole line come down together, and fire by subdivisions from right to left of their several regiments, twice from each preparative. The cannon to fire twice from each preparative, and when the fourth gun has fired, the right subdivision of each regiment begins the fire. The grenadiers to be fired altogether, by two flams from the front. Their own officers to make them shoulder. Signal for ceasing fire.

By subdivisions, marching and retreating.

On the 5th stroke on the drums, the line is to step off together, and when the march ceases by a loud stroke on the drum, is to halt. On the preparative, the whole come down, and fire as before, the right hand subdivisions beginning, when the fourth gun has fired. On the third stroke of the retreat, the whole go to the right about, and when the retreat ceases with a loud stroke, halt. At the flam, they come about, and at the preparative come down, and fire, as above.

By firings, standing.

On the preparative, all the right hand grand-divisions come down together, and are then fired by the commanding officer of each 2760 each regiment, right and left to the center of the line; and when the divisions have loaded, and come with the right hand under the lock, the commanding officer is to make them shoulder. On the next preparative, the left hand grand-divisions make ready and fire, as above, as do the grenadiers, on the 3d preparative. The guns to fire, once only, at the 1st preparative.

By firings, advancing.

On the 5th stroke of the march, the line steps off as before directed, and halts, when the march ceases. On the preparative, the right hand grand-divisions come down, fire, load, and shoulder, as above. A march:—When the march ceases, and the preparative is given, the left hand grand-divisions come down, and fire, as above, as do the grenadiers, after the march ceases the 3d time, and the 3d preparative is given. The guns fire, only once, at the 1st preparative.

By firings, retreating.

On the 3d stroke of the retreat, the whole go to the right about, and, when the retreat ceases, they halt. At the flam, they come to the right about, and at the preparative, the right hand grand-divisions make ready, and come down together, fire, load, and shoulder, as above directed. On the retreat, the whole go about, and when the drum ceases, they halt. On the flam, they come about and on the preparative, the left hand grand-divisions make ready, as above. The grenadiers, the same. The guns to fire, only once, at the 1st preparative.

By battalions, standing, advancing, and retreating.

The same as above, the guns firing once at each firing.

Volley and charge.

The whole to make ready and come down together, on the preparative. On the flam they present, and on the 2d flam the whole fire. After they have fired, the whole come up to a recover, and wait for a flam to come down to a charging posture. On the signal from the drum, the whole charge, dressing by the right. The guns to continue firing, during the time the line charges. When the drum ceases, the line is to halt, and dress as well as possible, waiting for a flam, for the front rank to recover their arms. On the retreat, the whole go to the right about, and continue retreating till the drum ceases, when the whole will halt, and on the flam come to the right about. A ruffle on the drum will be given as a caution to open ranks, which is to be done by 3 flams. The 4th flam is to shut pans, the 5th, to wipe bayonets, and the 6th, to shoulder. A ruffle will then be given as a caution, to unfix bayonets and shoulder with the usual flams, after which the commanding officers of regiments will order the grenadiers to the right of their battalions.

Complaint

1760 Complaint having been made to the general this morning, that a lamb was stolen last night, out of a field adjoining to the camp, and that the soldiers are suspected of the theft, in order to discover the thieves, the commanding officers will cause strict search to be made throughout the tents, huts, barracks, and quarters of their respective regiments, and oblige those, in whose possession any joint or part of a lamb may be found, to give an account how they came by it. The owner has lost six sheep lately cut of the same field.

The command of the Hertfordshire regiment, at Gosport, to be relieved on Friday, by a party of the Warwickshire regiment, which is to consist of the same number of officers and men, and to march to-morrow morning at 7 o' clock.

As the general has with great surprise observed, that several officers have been returned, absent without leave, he therefore orders, that all such officers be immediately ordered to join their several regiments.

¶ At this court martial Isaac Sparrowbill, a private soldier of lord Bruce's company, was ordered to receive 500 lashes, at two different times, viz. 300, at the first time, and 200, at the second, for making a disturbance in his quarters, in the night, by forcing into the bed chamber of Anne Dore, the maid servant, and attempting to get to bed to her. The first part of the punishment was inflicted agreeable to the sentence, but the second was remitted, there being reason to conclude from some circumstances which appeared after the trial, that the prisoner went to the maid's bed chamber by her consent, and that, upon being found there, she charged him with force, to save her character.

CASE concerning the rank of officers.

The officers of the Wiltshire regiment submit the following questions to the determination of the lord lieutenant.

Whether the course of preferment in the regiment is to be according to the dates of commissions, or must the lieutenant or ensign of the company succeed any captain, that may happen to resign?

A. According to the dates of commissions.

Should preferment go by dates of commissions, are the subalterns to be removed from the companies they now hold commissions in, or remain fixt, till some other company is vacant?

A.

Captain Lambert was not appointed to the command of a company upon the first establishment of the regiment, and his commission did not issue with the others, and bears a subsequent date, but

1761 but before the regiment was drawn out, he attended and exercised his company, and has always had the command of it, according to the original allotment:

Q. Who has precedence?

A. There can be no doubt, but, according to the custom of the army, he ranks according to the date of his commission.

The dates of the commissions of the second lieutenants of the colonel's and lieutenant colonel's companies are the same with the first:

Q. Are they to have precedence of the lieutenants of the other companies, whose commissions bear the same date?

A. If the second lieutenants of the field companies were ensigns at the original allotment of the rank of officers, they are to be considered as youngest lieutenants.

ORDERS.

London, 10th June 1761.

1st. Field marshal lord Ligonier orders, that, when the regiments encamp, they receive their bread from the contractors, and make the usual stoppage for it from the men.

2d. As soon as each corps comes into camp, a return is to be made of the effective number of horses to the general or commanding officer in camp, signed by the commanding officer of the regiment. A like return is to be made to the commissary general's deputy, and another to the deputy of the contractor. This return to be made upon honour, and no forage is to be taken, either by the general officers, staff, or the regiments, but for their effective horses; nor is any money to be taken in lieu of forage, upon any account whatsoever.

3d.

- 1761 3d. Returns to be made, in like manner, by the commanding officer of each regiment, of the number of soldiers tents pitched, for which they are to receive straw and wood.
- 4th. The number of rations of forrage, allowed to a marching regiment of foot, of nine companies, is 82 per day. If they have more, they must pay the contractor the price, which he is allowed by government.
- 5th. The allowance of straw is three trusses, of 36*l.* each, to every tent, that is pitched upon their first coming into camp, and one truss per week afterwards, for refreshing the tents.
- 6th. The allowance of wood is 15 l. per day, for each tent of 5 men, or 105 l. per week, for each tent of 5 men, and no more is to be taken.
- 7th. Whenever there is any alteration in the number of horses, or of tents, returns are to be made immediately, signed as before directed, and given to the general or officer commanding, to the commissary general, or his deputy, and to the deputy of the contractor.
- 8th. The quarter-masters are to give regular receipts at every delivery of bread, forrage, wood, and straw. These receipts are to be taken up once a month, and general ones given in their stead.
- 9th. If straw or wood is wanting for the regimental infirmary, the commanding officers of regiments will make their demand in writing to the general or officer commanding in camp, and, if he approves of the quantities, he will signify it to the commissary general's deputy, and to the deputy of the contractor. Separate receipts for this are to be given by the quarter-masters.
- 10th. The general officers, commanding in their respective camps, will give orders for mustering the horses, whenever the commissary general or his deputy shall desire it, in order to ascertain the numbers.
- 11th. Mr. Martyr is contractor for bread, forrage, wood, and straw. Commissary general Hume's deputy at Winchester camp is Mr. Charles Buchanan; at Sand Heath camp, Mr. James Chambers; and at Chatham camp, Mr. Henry Backhouse.
- 12th. The general and staff in London, will send a return, signed, of their effective horses, and no more, to commissary general Hume, in Hill street, Berkley square, that the magazines may be formed accordingly, at Mary la bon. The other general officers will sign a return of their effective horses, either to Mr. Hume, or his deputy, at their respective camps, as will be most convenient for them.
- 13th. The foot guards will receive their forrage, for their effective horses only, from the magazine, at Mary la bon. Returns to be made, upon honour, of their numbers to commissary general Hume, and to major of brigade Pownell, to be given in by him to lord Tyrawly, as directed above for the marching regiments. 1761 14th. Lieutenant Phelps is appointed major of brigade to the militia at Winchester camp.

R. O.

Instead of the rule for stoppages on market day, for messing the men, ordered on tuesday last, the following one is to take place next week; viz. on mondays and wednesdays, the men of the companies, on the right of the colours, are to have expended in meat and greens, 4 d. per man, each day, and on fridays, 6 d. on tuesdays and thursdays, those on the left, 4 d. and on saturdays, 6 d. as, by laying in greater quantities, their provisions would be liable to spoil. A serjeant and corporal of each company are to be appointed to the care of every four tents, and either serjeant or corporal is to attend a man of each tent to town, and be answerable, this order is punctually executed. To-morrow, the companies on the right are to expend 4 d. and those on the left, 6. A number of cartouches to be made up for the field pieces. Immediately after the piquets are returned, the regiments are to turn out in the front of the camp. The camp colours to be taken away, to make room for the battalions of each wing to join towards the center. The ranks to be at half distance. The two field pieces to be removed to the interval between the Hampshire and Berkshire. On the first preparative given from the right, and returned from the left, the regiments begin to load, and after loading, remain with the hand under the lock. On the repetition of the preparative, the field pieces in the center to fire three times each: The battalions are then to wait for two flams, which will be given from the orderly drums in the center. At the first flam the whole line is to make ready, and at the second present, each man waiting upon the present, till it is his turn to fire, which will begin from the right of the Wiltshire, and continue by a running fire to the left of the whole. They are to prime and load again immediately. After the line has fired, one of the field pieces is then to fire, as a signal to the two regiments in town to answer by a volley, one after the other. One regiment to be drawn up at the usual place, near the west gate, and the other in the church yard. The preparative is then to be repeated as above, for the field pieces to fire again, and the same firings to go on in the same manner, continuing till the whole has been executed three times; and then the regiments are to give three loud cheers, to conclude the whole. General's guard: The North Gloucester.

A detachment from the line, consisting of 1 captain, 3 subaltrens, 7 serjeants, 7 corporals, 3 drums, and 200 private, to parade at the head of the North Gloucester, to-morrow morning at the time of reveille, and proceed from thence to Gosport, in order to relieve the Dorsetshire, now doing duty there: The North Gloucester to furnish the captain, second subaltren, 3 serjeants, 3 corporals, 1 drum, and 92 private: the Hampshire, the first and third subaltren, 4 serjeants, 4 corporals, 2 drums, and 108 private.

Some misunderstandings having arisen between the men of the line and town, with relation to their being irregularly out of bounds, thanks are hereby returned to those men of the regiments in town, who have been attentive to see the orders of 21st of July put in execution, by stopping those men, who were found in Winchester without permits; and to prevent any misunderstanding, for the future, with regard to those men, who come up to camp from the town, it is recommended to the officers of the two battalions in town, to allow their men to come frequently up to camp, notwithstanding the distance, as it may be the means of instructing them in camp duty. They are only to take care to go back to their quarters, immediately after the piquets are returned. These orders to be read to the men three days successively.

Whereas great offence has been given to the companies on the right of the regiment, by the men frequently easing themselves in the high road and hedge on the flank, it is ordered, that no man presume to do it there for the future, on pain of severe punishment.

Whereas it has been represented to colonel Pitt, that several men in the town, under a pretence of seeing the order of the 21st of July put in execution, have behaved in an insulting manner, and have been suspected to have taken money to screen men, who have gone to town without permits, it is thought necessary to put an immediate stop to what, in either case, must be attended with very bad consequences; and it is therefore ordered, that, for the future, none of the men in town shall question those of the line about their permits, or stop them, whilst they behave as becomes them, on any pretext whatsoever. That no man may plead ignorance, it is directed, that this order be read to the men in town at every roll calling, for three days successively. Sir George Saville being extremely desirous of having so great an offence, as that above mentioned, brought to light, and severely punished, has desired the following advertisement may be inserted in publick orders.

Whereas a publick report has strongly prevailed, that some person or persons of the Yorkshire battalion have stopped soldiers from the camp, not having permits, and threatened to carry them to camp, unless they would give them money, and did accordingly release them, on their paying the same; and whereas, after the greatest pains being taken through the Yorkshire battalion, no discovery of the truth of this report has been made, colonel sir George Saville hereby promises a reward of 10 guineas to any one, who can discover the person or persons of the Yorkshire battalion, who have been guilty of so great an offence, and bring sufficient proof of the same, so that they may be convicted thereof, and be brought to justice.

Upon account of the discharge of a great number of men from the line, it is thought proper to alter the roster for the duty at Gosport, in the following manner: The Wiltshire and Dorsetshire regiments supply their detachments singly, the two battalions of the Gloucestershire unite in supplying their detachment, as do the Berkshire and Hampshire. By these means, the whole line goes through this tour of duty in four detachments instead of five, as in the last tour.

Complaint having been made, that some of the men in camp make a practice of retailing gin, contrary to express standing orders, and this too at the most irregular and unseasonable hours, it is hereby declared, that whoever is found guilty of this practice for the future, shall be punished in the most exemplary manner; and it is particularly recommended to officers, to be as active as possible in making discovery of such delinquents. It is recommended to the officers of the several piquets, when they go their rounds in an evening, to examine very carefully the petty futlers booths, and to begin rather earlier than has hitherto been thought necessary, as the days are much shortened. If any petty futlers are found to harbour any company, or are known to have any lights in their booths, after the second visiting rounds have gone about, their booths shall immediately be pulled down, and they turned out of the camp.

Complaint having been made to sir Willoughby Aston, that several of the men from the quarter guards make a practice of coming up to the magazine of straw, in order to sleep, instead of being at their proper tents, to the great neglect of military discipline, as well as detriment to the magazine, it is ordered, that a corporal and 4 private do immediately mount guard upon the magazine, who are to permit no person to come near it, unless upon lawfull occasions, and agreeable to the orders for foraging. If any damage 1761 is done to the magazine, or any persons detected harbouring there, the corporal of the guard, for the time being, will be responsible; he is therefore to give in to the corporal, who relieves him, the exact state the magazine is left in, and make the same report to the major of brigade. The Wiltshire to furnish the first guard. A tent to be immediately supplied from the Hampshire, and the deputy commissary to order two trusses of straw.

Whereas a drummer, supposed to belong to one of the regiments in the town, beat the general, this morning between 7 and 8 o' clock, either within, or close upon the town, and some drum and fifes were practising, in the middle of the town, much about the same hour, which is not only a disturbance to the people, but may occasion confusion, in case of an alarm at the French prison, it is recommended to the commanding officers of the two battalions in town, to order their drums and fifes always to practice at such a distance from town, as is agreeable to the standing orders for that purpose, and to pitch upon such places, as may be most out of hearing.

Mr. Reeves's great coat, which was advertised, on the 5th of September, to have been lost, not having been since heard of, the serjeants are desired to read that advertisement to the men, three or four times, at different roll callings, letting them know, that whoever brings it to Mr. Reeves, of the Berkshire, shall receive a guinea reward: No greater reward will be offered.

The men to assemble with their arms, at a quarter before 6 o' clock to-morrow morning, in order for exercise.

Piquet this evening: Captain Egerton, lieutenant Scoles, and ensign Davis. Quarter guard to-morrow: Lieutenant Sutton.

After orders.

The whole line to be under arms, at 3 o' clock this afternoon: The men to parade at the head of their respective regiments, with wooden snappers. The three battalions upon the right, to face to the left, and march within four paces of the Berkshire, keeping an interval of four paces between each other: The two Gloucestershire battalions upon the left, face to the right, and march towards the Berkshire, in the same manner. The battalions being come to their ground, the ranks are to be opened to half distance, and bayonets fixed by their respective commanding officers. Upon the preparative, begun from the right, and returned from the left, the whole line primes and loads, waiting, with the hand under the lock, for the flam to shoulder. The preparative then begins again upon the right, but is followed by no motion from the men, as it is a caution only, to shew at what time the battalion guns are to fire. A ruffle then from the center, as a caution to make ready; flam the whole whole line makes ready, as center rank; flam, present; flam fire; 1761 then prime and load, waiting, as above, with the hand under the lock for the flam to shoulder. The firings are then repeated as above. After the third fire, recover; flam, shoulder. The men are to be accoutred as for common exercise. The camp colours and chevaux de frise to be removed.

Orderly serjeant and magazine guard: The Dorsetshire.

When the line is ordered out to fire, upon the occasion of his Majesty's nuptials, the orders of yesterday are to be observed. After the three volleys have been given, and the men are shouldered, they will receive a signal, by the waving of the officer's sword in front, at which the whole line will take off their hats, and give a loud cheer. This signal will be repeated twice, and at every repetition the cheer will be renewed as above. They will then receive a caution, by a ruffle from the drum, at which the adjutants of the the respective battalions will make their men half cock, clean bayonets, shoulder, poise, unfix &c. The battalions will wait for each other, till the whole has finished this, when they will face to the right and left, and march to their respective ground. Those, who arrive there first, will continue, till all the battalions have gained their proper ground, when the officers of the several regiments will dismiss their men.

The line to be out at 5 o' clock, this evening, in the same manner as yesterday. Instead of parading on the front line, to be drawn up as near as is convenient to the bells of arms. As an express may arrive suddenly, and occasion the brigade to fire this afternoon, the officers as well as the men are to be ready to turn out at the quickest notice, with every thing suitable to the occasion.

R. O.

The men are immediately to get their arms, accoutrements, and linen, clean, in order to turn out in their new regimentals, at a moment's warning. If an express arrives for the line to fire, the officers will be in full regimentals; but should none arrive, they are to be under arms, at a quarter before 5 o' clock this afternoon, in the same manner as yesterday, in half regimentals, and the men in brown gaiters.

The whole line to be under arms, this day at a quarter after 12 o' clock, in order to fire, on the occasion of his Majesty's nuptials. To parade at the same time as yesterday. The men to be dressed as clean as possible, with white gaiters, and their hair well powdered. Each man to have three rounds given him. Officers in full regimentals, and white gaiters. The firing of the battalions to be executed in the manner lately practised. Bayonets not to be fixed. The battalion guns to be drawn opposite the interval, between the Berkshire and Hampshire encampment. When the second preparative has been given from the right, and returned again from the left, the battalion guns are to fire 21 times. Afterwards, a battalion gun will fire once after every volley from the line, as a signal to the battalions in town.

The turnkeys to be immediately informed of this order.

When the line is out this afternoon, the regiments will go thorough the manual, as on saturday: but the officers being posted, they will begin by the salutes. The adjutant, who rides down the line, is to keep a slow and equal pace, as a reviewing officer should do, in order to accustom gentlemen to time their salutes properly. When the manual is finished, the ranks will be opened to half distance, to practise the firing by vollies, as it will be done to-morrow, which is to be conducted agreeable to the orders of the 8th instant. When the practising the vollies is over, the adjutants of the several regiments will order their men, to half cock, close ranks, and open them to their proper distance. The South Gloucester and the West Essex battalions are to hold themselves in readiness to march, on monday next, for their winter quarters; the first division of the Dorsetshire and Berkshire regiments to hold themselves in readiness to march, on tuesday next, to the places mentioned in their respective routs; and the North Gloucester battalion to hold itself in readiness to march on the same day. The commanding officers of those regiments, who have discretionary routs given them, will fix, as soon as possible, upon the rout they are to take, and give in to lord Effingham the day, on which they expect to arrive at the place of their destination, allowing thursdays and sundays for halting days.

The quarter-masters of the battalions in camp are, on the morning their respective battalions march out, to get all their blankets properly folded, packed, and corded, with a label affixed to each bale, mentioning the name of the battalion, and the number of blankets. The bales to be directed to Mr. Vincent, packer, in Thread Needle street, near the Royal Exchange, and delivered to Mr. Waldron, London waggoner, at Winchester. The quarter-masters are to inform Mr. Cathcart, by a line directed to him at the war office, how many blankets each bale contains. The surgeons of each battalion are to do the same with regard to the hospital bedding under their care, and particularly, to inform Mr. Cathcart, by letter, of the exact quantity of each species they deliver to the waggoner.

The commanding officers of the several regiments in camp will take particular care, when they quit their ground, that the straw and huts be not set on fire.

The companies to be immediately divided into messes, two in each barrack, with a serjeant or corporal in each, as far as the number will admit. The serjeants will be answerable, that 17*d.* per week are stopped, for furnishing them with meat and small beer, and to be laid out as follows, viz. 6*d.* each man for meat, on tuesdays, and 8*d.* on saturdays, and 3*d.* for small beer, on tuesdays; and it is expected, that they should dine, at about half an hour after 12 o'clock, for the conveniency of the officers inspecting them. Mess rolls to be given in to the adjutant for the commanding officer, to-morrow morning at troop beating. The rolls of the companies to be called three times every day, viz. at troop beating in the morning, the whole in Ligonier square, and at 12 o'clock at noon, and retreat beating, in their own squares. Reports to be made in the evening to the commanding officer.

No man to go out of the lines without leave in writing from the commanding officer, nor out of the barracks, after retreat beating, on pain of severe punishment. The centinels at the doors of the different squares are strictly required, to stop every man going out, and to take the name of every one, who comes in after retreat beating, and give them to the serjeant of the guard, who is to report them to the commanding officer.

The men, whom the officers commanding companies mean to indulge with permits, are to be brought together to the commanding officer, at 10 o'clock every morning, by a serjeant of a company.

The prisoners of the artillery company are, at all times, to be confined at the Citadel guard, and at no other.

A subaltren's guard, till further orders, is to mount to-morrow at the Round house, as usual, agreeable to the detail which will be given by the aid de camp. The 66th will send to Coxside 6 men; the Queen's, 4; and the Wiltshire, 8. The Round house guard will consist of 1 subaltren, 2 serjeants, 2 corporals, 1 drum, and 30 private. The Queen's regiment will furnish the guard over the wrecks at Cat down, to-morrow, of 1 serjeant, 1 corporal, and 12 private.

R. O.

As soon as the retreat has done beating, the serjeant of the barrack guard is to lock the gates into the several squares, excepting the center gate, into Ligonier square, and the corner gate, where the drums beat off at, into Frederick square, which the centinels are to keep bolted, and not suffer any soldier or servant to pass without permits. The serjeant, who is found negligent in this duty, will be severely punished.

Captain Long has appointed James Taylor, a corporal in captain Awdry's company, to be a serjeant in the same company, in the room of serjeant Brown, discharged; and John Vivash to be a corporal in the same company, in the room of corporal Taylor, preferred.

Complaint having been made by the barrack-master, that he found the barracks, on his inspecting them yesterday morning, in a very slovenly condition, with the bedsteads not turned up, and the mens cloaths, arms, and shoes, thrown upon the beds, which will, if not prevented, injure the bedding, and lay him under the necessity of complaining to the chief engineer, the commanding officer therefore orders, that the barracks are clean swept, and the beds turned, up every morning before 9 o'clock; and that no part of the mens cloaths, or arms, are thrown upon the beds, but hung up in their proper places, on pain of severe punishment. The serjeants and corporals in general, and particularly of their respective barracks, are required to see this order punctually obeyed.

The men to assemble with their arms and accoutrements clean, to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, in order for a general field day.

Wednesday morning, 9 o'clock, 10th March.

A regimental court martial to be held, at the orderly room, immediately: Captain Vilett, for captain Stonehouse, president; lieutenants, Horn and Wansey, and ensigns, Long and Howson, members.

¶ At this court martial the following prisoners were tried:

Duke Simkins, a private soldier of captain Vilett's company, who was ordered to receive 200 lashes, for sleeping on his post, and suffering himself to be relieved without a corporal.

William Bendry, a private soldier of captain Goddard's company, who was ordered to receive 100 lashes, for permitting the centinels to relieve themselves, when he acted as lance corporal.

Thomas Hawkins, a private soldier of captain Egerton's company, who was ordered to receive 100 lashes, for relieving a centinel without a corporal.

Edward Snow, a corporal in captain Goddard's company, who was ordered to be reduced to the pay and duty of a private man, for lying out of barracks all night without leave.

Benjamin Randall, a corporal of lieutenant colonel Northey's company, who was ordered to be reduced to the pay and duty of a private man, for being out of barracks after taptoo beating, without leave.

James

James Brown, a private soldier of captain Goddard's company, who was ordered to receive 50 lashes, for being out of barracks after taptob beating, without leave. 1762

Jonathan Poole, a private soldier of captain Long's company, who was charged with lending linnen to Thomas Eden, to produce at a review of necessaries, but acquitted.

Thomas Eden, a private foldier of major Young's company, who was ordered to receive 50 lashes, for borrowing linnen of his washer-woman, to produce at a review of necessaries.

These sentences being confirmed by the commanding officer, the two corporals were reduced accordingly, and the punishment inflicted on Simkins and Brown, the same evening at roll calling; but Bendry, Hawkins, and Eden, were forgiven at the halberts.

A regimental court martial to be held, at the orderly room, to-morrow morning at 11 o' clock: Captain Egerton president; lieutenant Scoles, and ensigns, Howson, Biggs, and Slade, for lieutenant Sutton, members.

¶ At this court martial, the following prisoners were tried, and ordered corporal punishment:

John Edwards, a private soldier of captain Beckford's company, was ordered to receive 100 lashes, for absenting himself from evening roll calling, and for being out of barracks after taproom beating, without leave.

George

1762 George May, a private soldier of captain Awdry's company, was ordered to receive 100 lashes, for being out of the lines without leave, and for appearing in a very slovenly condition :

John Kingston, a private soldier of captain Egerton's company, was ordered to receive 300 lashes, for being drunk on duty ; but was recommended to mercy, as his drunkenness was partly occasioned by the misbehaviour of corporal White, of lieutenant colonel Northey's company, who suffered himself and his party, of which the prisoner was one, to be treated with liquor at the expence of some French prisoners, as they were conducting them on board the Royal Oak.

Edwards and May received their whole punishment, the same evening at roll calling; but Kingston had part of his remitted, and received only 100 lashes.

Corporal White was reduced to the pay and duty of a private man by order of the commanding officer, for his misbehaviour. He afterwards deserted, and entred himself on board a ship of war.

A regimental court martial to be held, at the orderly room, to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock: Captain Vilett president; lieutenant Bracher and lieutenant Scoles, for lieutenant Horn, ensign Biggs, for lieutenant Wansey, and ensign Davis, members.

¶ The proceedings of the above court martial were as follow:

At a regimental court martial held in Ligonier square, the 12th day of May 1762:

	Captain Vilett president;
Lieutenants,	Bracher, } Scoles, }	Ensigns, Davis, } Biggs, }	Members:

John Stevens, a private soldier of lord Bruce's company was charged with disobedience of orders, and with behaving insolently to captain George Slorach, of the 102d regiment or Queen's Royal Volunteers.

Captain Slorach informs the court, that, on last sunday evening, as he and captain Cleland were riding by Cumberland square, they observed many of the men on the grass, in the said square, and upon captain Cleland's saying to him "you may now see the improper behaviour of those men" they both rode into the square, and ordered the men (amongst whom was the prisoner) off from the grass; and as he was driving their own men off, the prisoner advanced towards him, and declared, the square was as free for him as for any one, and he would not go off. He says, he then called a serjeant to order the prisoner to his barrack, but the prisoner refused to go, and as he was going out of the square, the prisoner, at the head of several men, followed him to the gate, shouting after him. Seeing lieutenant Terry and ensign Roached, he called them, and returned back into the square, to know the reason of their shouting, where they found the prisoner still at the head of the men, and on his ordering him to his barrack, a second time time, the prisoner swore, he would not go, that he had as much right in the square as the captain had, that he was no officer of his, neither would he obey him. Ensign Slade, of the Wiltshire, then coming had the prisoner confined. Captain Slorach further says, that, as he was pushing the prisoner towards his barrack, he clinched his fist at him several times, upon which he reproved the prisoner, telling him, such behaviour would do him no good, but might bring him to be hanged.

Captain Hans Cleland, of the 102d regiment, informs the court, that, as he and captain Slorach were riding by the square, he intreated captain Slorach, as commanding officer, to see the behaviour of the Wiltshire in that square, but left it entirely to him, never interfering till the men began to shout, and he saw no likelihood of having them confined, the serjeants and corporals not caring to confine them; and then he did observe to them, that it was very unsoldierlike behaviour to officers, who did or might command them every day.

Lieutenant Terry, of the 102d regiment, says, that last sunday evening, as he with ensign Roached was passing by Cumberland square, they heard a great noise, and moving towards it he saw captain Slorach, who called to him, and returned into the square. Upon following captain Slorach, he found him talking with a serjeant of the Wiltshire, but he was not particularly attentive to the conversation which passed between them. As they returned out of the square, the men followed, were noisy, and shouted after them, and, on their turning back, they found the prisoner at the head of them. Captain Slorach then took the prisoner by the shoulder, and ordered him to his barrack, but, he paying no regard to this order, captain Slorach pushed him towards it. Just as the prisoner got to his barrack ensign Slade came into the square, who, after inquiring the cause of captain Slorach, ordered a corporal of the Wiltshire to confine the prisoner; but the corporal hesitated, and questioned ensign Slade again "shall I confine him."

Ensign Roached, of the 102d regiment, speaks to the same purport as lieutenant Terry.

The prisoner in his defence says, that he never was upon the grass: That captain Slorach and captain Cleland rode into the square, and ordered all the men (of whom there were many of both regiments) off the grass: That captain Slorach came to him, as he was standing on the causeway, and asked him, what he meant by laughing at him, and ordered him to his barrack. To this he made no other reply than "that he had done nothing, and it was hard he should be ordered to his barrack, before 9 o'clock." He says, he did not laugh at captain Slorach; but captain Slorach swore at him, and abused the regiment, and then went towards the gate. He says, there was some noise, but he did not apprehend, it was 1762 was meant to insult captain Slorach. As he was walking near the gate, captain Slorach returned and fixed on him, as one of those who made the noise, but he never opened his lips.

Ensign Slade, of the Wiltshire, says, that, coming into Cumberland square, about 7 o'clock, last sunday evening, he heard a noise, and saw some of the men assembled in one corner of the square; and on his going to see what was the matter, he found captain Slorach pushing the prisoner towards his barrack. On his inquiring the cause, and captain Slorach informing him, that the prisoner had been impertinent to him, he ordered him to be confined. He says, as captain Slorach pushed the prisoner towards his barrack, he moved slow and unwillingly, but did not move his hands to attempt to strike captain Slorach, or behave impertinent to him.

John Hollick, a private soldier of lord Bruce's company, informs the court, that he was standing near the prisoner, when captain Slorach and captain Cleland rode into Cumberland square, where many of the men of the Queen's and the Wiltshire were playing on the grass, whom captain Slorach ordered off. As the men were moving off, captain Slorach came up to the prisoner, and said to him, "damn you, you rascal, what do you laugh at me for," and ordered him to his barrack. The prisoner then moved towards his barrack, and captain Slorach towards the gate, which goes out of the square. Captain Slorach being gone, the prisoner walked towards the gate, amongst the other men, when captain Slorach returned, seized him, ordered him to his barrack, and pushed him towards it. The prisoner had his arms crossed, and as captain Slorach pushed him, he disengaged them, to prevent his falling; upon which captain Slorach accused the prisoner with attempting to strike him, but the prisoner denied it, and said, he did not hold up his hand against him: To this captain Slorach replied, that, did or did not, his word would go before the prisoners; that he did not care for the whole regiment, if they did not come behind him, not even lord Bruce himself: that he had but one life to lose, which he did not value of a straw.

Serjeant Thomas Fitcher, corporal William Gardner, Bartholomew Cox, John Cox, William Ware, Thomas Chandler, Joseph Kidgell, William Pye, Edward Dowling, John Hobbs, John Adams, Thomas Powell, John Smith, Thomas Hobbs, James Pommells, and William Underwood, all of lord Bruce's company, speak to the same purport as John Hollick.

Mrs. Mary Langman says, that, walking through Cumberland square with her children, she saw captain Slorach pushing the prisoner before him, damning him, calling him scoundrel, and saying, he did not care for the whole regiment, not even lord Bruce himself; but the prisoner did not make the least reply, or offer to move his hand against captain Slorach.

Serjeant

Serjeant major Bentham, of the Wiltshire, informs the court, 1762 that he was in his barrack, no. 19, in Cumberland square, and saw captain Slorach and captain Cleland come into the square on horse-back; that they swore at some men, who were playing on the grafs, and ordered them off; that the men dispersed immediately, and he heard no noise, but the common buzzing of the men, except what was made by the above named officers themselves.

Lieutenant Terry and ensign Roached being called on by captain Slorach, say, they were very near him, at the time, the men of the Wiltshire charge him with saying, that he did not care for the whole regiment, nor even lord Bruce himself, and they never heard him make use of lord Bruce's name.

The court, having duly considered the evidence brought before them, are of opinion, that the prisoner is guilty of a breach of the latter part of the fifth article, of the second section, of the articles of war, in not obeying captain Slorach's order, and repairing to his barrack, and do sentence him to receive 500 lashes on his bare back with a cat of nine tails, but do acquit him of any intent of striking captain Slorach, or insolent behaviour to him.

¶ The sentence of the above court martial was never put in execution, lieutenant general Pole being pleased to remit it.

¶ At this court martial the three following prisoners were tried:

Thomas Hardy, a private soldier of lieutenant colonel Northey's company, who was ordered to receive 400 lashes, for stealing three guineas and a half and a snuff box, the property of Mr. Thomas Eales, whose wife had accidentally dropped the snuff box with the money in it, in their shop, in the prisoners presence. He was likewise ordered to be put under a weekly stoppage (not exceeding half his pay) to repay the three guineas and a half.

John Huntly and Richard Shepherd, both private soldiers of captain Awdry's company, who were ordered to receive 100 lashes, each, for being out of barracks, without leave, after retreat beating.

Hardy received 200 lashes, part of his sentence (the other 200 being remitted) and Huntly and Shepherd their whole number, the same evening at roll calling.

James Brown, of captain Goddard's company, for not joining the regiment, at Plymouth, with the other men, who were on furlough when the regiment marched from Salisbury, and had received orders to proceed after it, as soon as their furloughs expired.

Andrew Sprules, of lord Bruce's company, for suffering men to pass, without permits, after retreat beating, out of one of the gates of the square, where he was posted sentinel.

Thomas Neal, of captain Beckford's company, for being drunk on the Mill prison guard, whilst he had two French prisoners under his care to conduct to and from Plymouth, and for suffering himself to be treated with liquor by them.

The dates of the courts martial, at which the above three soldiers were tried, and the number of lashes ordered, cannot be ascertained, as the proceedings are lost; but it may be presumed, they were tried, either on the 28th December, 1761, or on the 6th January, 1762, as the proceedings of those two courts martial, and no others, are wanting.

It is lord Strange's order, that the commanding officer of the artillery do deliver out to the quarter-masters of each battalion in the line, they giving a proper receipt for the same, any number (not exceeding ten) of pickaxes, shovels, and spades.

The different battalions are to take care, that the taps and drummers call pass and repass, regularly, morning and evening, whether they are out at exercise, or not. The preparative is to pass and repass from the regiment on the right, before the officer of the quarter guard marches his guard from the lines of parade, and after the centinels have joined the old guard of the right regiment, the preparative is to pass from the old guards to the left, and from the new return to the right again; and no regiment is to give the preparative, till the centinels are come in, that the whole may relieve and troop off together. When the Essex are out at exercise, their quarter guard drum is to pass and return the Berkshire's preparative, as it may not otherwise be heard to the left.

London, 1st June, 1762.

It is his Majesty's order, that the articles of war be regularly read every two months; and field marshal lord Ligonier recommends it to the officers, to take particular notice of the twelfth section.

It

It is his Majesty's order, that the troops keep strictly and literally to the last orders for the exercise and evolutions, and to the best regulations of discipline. At all reviews, and publick exercises, they are constantly to perform the exercise and evolutions directed; but at private exercises, the commanding officers are permitted to make use of any evolutions, which they judge may be serviceable.

It is field marshal lord viscount Ligonier's order, that all officers join their corps immediately; and that the foot guards, marching corps, and the militia, compleat their companies of grenadiers forthwith, and keep them in readiness to march, on the first notice.

The troops are to put on and fit their new cloaths as soon as possible.

As soon as each corps comes into camp, a return is to be made to the general or commanding officer in camp, of the effective number of horses, signed by the commanding officer of the corps. A like return is to be made to the commissary general Hume's deputy, and another to the deputy of the contractor. These returns to be made upon honour, and no forrage is to be taken, either by the general officers, the staff, or regiments, but for their effective horses; nor is any money to be taken in lieu of forrage, upon any account.

Returns to be made in like manner, by the commanding officer of each corps, of the number of tents pitched, for which they are to receive wood and straw.

The number of rations of forrage allowed to a marching regiment of foot, of 9 companies, is 82, each day. If more is taken, the regiment must pay the contractor the price allowed him by government. The allowance of straw is three trusses of 36*l.* each, for every tent pitched on their first coming to camp, and afterwards one truss each week, for refreshing the tents. The allowance of wood is 15*l.* per day, for each tent of 5 men, or 105*l.* per week; and no more is to be taken. Whenever there is any alteration in the number of horses or tents, returns are to be made immediately, signed as before directed, and given to the general officer commanding, to the commissary general, or his deputy, and to the deputy of the contractor.

The quarter-masters are to give regular receipts, at every delivery of forrage, wood, and straw. These receipts are to be taken up, once a month, and general ones given in their stead.

If wood or straw is wanting for the regimental infirmaries, the commanding officers of regiments will make their demands in writing, to the general or commanding officer in camp. If he approves of the quantities, he will signify it to the commissary general, and to the deputy contractor. Separate receipts for this are to be given by the quarter-masters. The commanding officers of the several camps will give orders for mustering the horses, whenever the commissary general or his deputy shall desire it, in order to ascertain their numbers.

The commanding officer of the Buckinghamshire is to apply, forthwith, to the chief magistrate of Winchester for a proper room, for an officer and a guard, at some distance from the North Gate. As soon as the place is in order, the guard will be appointed.

It is recommended to the commanding officers of the different corps, not to suffer any of their men to go to Magdalen fair, unless in parties under the care of serjeants, who, to the utmost of their power, are to prevent gambling, and all other irregularities, and to report such as behave improperly.

The

The Buckinghamshire are to double their town guard every 1762 night, while the fair holds, and patrols are to be constantly moving in the streets, from taptoo to reveille beating.

All commissioned and non-commissioned officers are desired, if, at any time, they shall see any rioting or quarrelling amongst the foldiers, to confine them immediately at the first guard, though they should not belong to their own regiment; and it is strongly recommended to all officers, who shall see any non-commissioned officer present, when any thing of that sort happens, who does not do his utmost to prevent it, to confine him likewise.

The officers of the King's house guard are desired to visit the sentinels often, and to be very attentive to the orders published by general Boscawen, of the 20th of August, 1758, and particularly so on this publick occasion, to the country people's having no communication with the prisoners. A regimental court martial to be held to-morrow morning, at 9 o' clock: Captain Vilett president; lieutenant Wansey, ensign Powell, ensign Stump, for lieutenant Scoles, and ensign Vince, members.

¶ The above court martial was held on the three following prisoners:

William Bendry, a corporal of captain Stonehouse's company, who was found guilty of stealing the necessaries of Charles Phillips, a private soldier of the same company, and was ordered to be reduced to the pay and duty of a private man, and to receive 300 lashes. This sentence was never fully executed, the prisoner having avoided the greatest part of it by deserting. When he had received about 50 lashes, he fainted away, and the surgeon thinking it dangerous to proceed with his punishment, he was ordered to be continued in custody, to receive the remainder, at a future day. On the first night of his confinement, he took the opportunity of the centinel's being asleep to make his escape, and was never heard of till after the regiment was disembodied, when it was found, that he had enlisted into the Coldstream regiment of foot guards.

1762 Thomas Tilling, a private soldier of captain Long's company, who was found guilty of being out of camp without leave, when on the piquet, and was ordered 150 lashes, which he received the same evening, at piquet mounting.

Peter Bencroft, a private soldier of captain Vilett's company, who was found guilty of disobedience of orders, and of quitting his post before he was regularly relieved; but was not ordered any punishment, as he appeared to the court to be disordered in his senses. He was afterwards discharged, as a lunatick.

The regiment to be ready to turn out for exercise to-morrow, at a moment's warning; the men in gaiters, with their arms flinted, and well dressed, and the officers in half regimentals.

After orders.

Deserted from his Majesty's 30th regiment of foot, commanded by the right honourable the earl of Loudon, now at Hilsa barracks;

Michael Gifford, of lieutenant colonel Ramsey's company, born in the city of Kingsburgh, in Germany, twenty years of age, five feet, ten inches, high, pale complexion, light coloured hair, grey eyes, by occupation a labourer, had on, when he went away, his regimental coat, waistcoat, and hat, and leather breeches.

Thomas Porter, of captain Lewis's company, born at St. Albans, in Hertfordshire, twenty eight years of age, five feet, six inches, and a half, high, pale complexion, black hair, black eyes, by trade a sword cutler, served his time at Birmingham, and had on his regimentals, when he went away:

Thomas Low, of captain Dumas's company, born at Stockport, in Cheshire, twenty five years of age, five feet, ten inches, and a half, high, fresh complexion, light coloured hair, grey eyes, high cheek bones, and had on his regimentals, when he went away.

Whoever

Whoever secures either of the said deserters in any of his Majesty's goals, in Great Britain, and gives notice thereof to the commanding officer of the regiment, at Hilsa barracks, or to John Calcraft esq. at his office in Channel Row, Westminster, shall receive a guinea reward, over and above what is allowed by act of parliament, for apprehending deserters.

N. B. Whoever secures Porter or Low, shall receive two guineas reward.

The line to be in readiness to turn out to-morrow evening, at 5 o'clock: The officers in regimental frocks. The quarter guards to stand shouldered; and the officers of the piquets in their ranks, as usual. The piquets to be disposed of, as follows: The Wiltshire to draw up on the left flank; from the quarter guard to the left of the bell tents; the serjeants and fifteen men from the other piquets, in the front of their own regiments, dressing and facing with the quarter guards; the corporals and the remainder, in the intervals between each regiment. The men to be at equal distances, with their bayonets fixed, and to suffer no person whatever, unless by proper authority, to pass between them.

The Berkshire, on this occasion, are to mount a serjeant, corporal, and fifteen men, to guard their right flank, who are not to be dismissed, till the line is turned in.

A regimental court martial to be held, at 12 o'clock to-morrow: Captain Egerton president; lieutenants, Biggs and Bracher, ensigns, Davis and Stump, members.

¶ The proceedings of the above court martial were to the following purport:

Serjeant William Carter and corporal James Bass, both of the major's company, charged by lieutenant colonel sir William Coddington, of the South Gloucestershire, with being out of their encampment after retreat beating, and with behaving in a riotous manner, were found guilty of the first part of the charge, and ordered to be reduced to the pay and duty of private men, but were acquitted of riotous behaviour. The prisoners, without any authority, had gone into the Gloucestershire encampment in search of one Thomas Philips of the major's company, who was absent from roll calling, and having found him drunk at a petty petty sutler's had brought him part of the way to his own regiment, when he got from them, and by his riotous behaviour engaged himself and them in a fray with some of the Gloucestershire piquet.

William Tanner, a private soldier of captain Vilett's company, was ordered to receive 50 lashes, for being absent from roll calling without leave, and constantly appearing in a very slovenly condition.

The serjeant and corporal were reduced according to their sentence, and the punishment was inflicted on Tanner, at piquet mounting, the same evening.

Previous to any performance of the line, each regiment is to be told off into front and rear half files, subdivisions, grand divisions, and firings. The manner of firing will be explained hereafter.

Each regiment is to be formed six deep, and well dressed, rank and file, the officers dressing with the files. A fliegel man to be posted to each regiment, that of the Berkshire facing to the left, the others facing towards the Berkshire, and taking the motions from each other.

Each regiment is to furnish two orderly drums, one to attend the exercising officer, opposite the center of the line, and the other to be before the center of his respective regiment, fronting towards the orderly drums. The fliegel man is to dress in the same line. A corporal is to be posted in the rear, on the flanks of each regiment, to set the facings: All these are likewise to dress.

The advanced regimental drums are not to dress in a line with the fliegel man, but nearly with the orderly drums. The advanced regimental drums are to keep their eyes fixed on the major's orderly drums, and perform the signals with them. The fliegel man is to keep his eye on the regimental drum, and the regiments are to take their motions from their fliegel man. The drums of the line, in saluting and the facings, are to be very attentive to cease beating, when the orderly drums cease.

When the major raises the point of his sword, the orderly drums lift up their hands, and beat, when the point is fallen.

The ruffle from the orderly drums will be a signal to the line. The flams, following, to poise, fix bayonets, and shoulder. Then the ruffle or caution for the salute. Then the flam to present arms, and the facings &c.

Before the general salute, the officer on the right of the Berkshire is to be advanced a few paces. He is to keep his eye on the major, and begin the salute, upon his dropping the point of his sword, and not put on his hat, till the sword is raised. The other officers are to be very attentive to perform the motions with him.

Care should be taken, that, after the general salute, the men remember, that the next flam is to poise &c. Roll &c Manual to be performed, as usual, omitting the front half files doubling the rear, and the grand divisions doubling by the side step.

There will be a ruffle, as a caution, for the rear half files to double the front, on the conclusion of which the officers recover their arms: Flam, the officers and men step off. There will likewise be a ruffle, as a caution, for the rear ranks to close, on which the officers advance their arms: Flam, step off and close.

The

1762 The manual being over, and a ruffle, as a caution, flam, the rear half files form six deep. Roll, a caution for officers; and at the ensuing flam, they recover, march to the front, halt, and order. Ruffle, a caution for the rear half files to double the front; flam, march. Ruffle, for the rear ranks to close to the front, and officers to advance their arms; flam, the rear ranks close to the front. Ruffle, a caution to wheel on the center; flam, the right of the center of each regiment goes to the right about; flam, wheel, halt, and front. Ruffle, a caution to wheel to the left about; flam, the left of the center goes to the right about; flam, wheel, halt, and front. Ruffle, a caution for the rear ranks to take their open distance; flam, the rear ranks go to the right about; flam, march to open distance; flam, halt, and officers order their arms. Ruffle, a caution to prepare for the charge; flam, face as usual; flam and point of war, the grenadiers cover the flanks, and the subdivisions open; flam, front. Care should be taken, that the ranks and files are well dressed.

Ruffle, a caution to prime and load; flam, prime and load, and shoulder, regularly and together; flam, officers advance their arms, and go to the right about; flam, the rear ranks close, the officers taking post.

Preparative, the cannon on the flanks fire. Preparative, the whole line makes ready in one motion; flam, the firing begins. Each regiment is to fire twice, from right and left, and then the grenadiers; flam, present; flam, fire. General, the firing ceases; flam, the whole line shoulders.

March, the line steps off at the fifth stroke of the drum looking towards the center, and when the march ceases with a strong flam, the line halts. Preparative, make ready, and proceed to fire, as before.

Retreat and flam, the whole line goes to the right about, and steps off, without planting; at the next flam. At the retreat ceasing, the line halts; flam, comes to the right about and plants. Preparative, make ready, and proceed to fire as before.

By firings. The right hand grand divisions of each wing compose the first firing, the two left, the second, and the grenadiers, the third. Preparative, the first firing of the whole line makes ready: Present, fire, from the right and left of the line by their own commanding officers. General, the firing ceases; flam, shoulder. March, the whole line marches, and when the march ceases, halts. Preparative, the second firing makes ready &c. as before. Retreat, the line goes to the right about, and marches, as before, and when the retreat ceases the whole halts; flam, it comes about, and plants. Preparative, the third firing makes ready; present, fire, as before

Preparative

Preparative, the whole line makes ready; flam, a signal to 1762 begin firing by battalions, from right and left of the line, once, standing, advancing, and retreating, as before directed, by the commanding officer of each regiment.

Preparative, the whole make ready; flam, present; flam, fire a general discharge, and recover their arms; flam and point of war, they charge their bayonets, (as in advancing) and march briskly forward, taking care to keep the line, and not to hurry. When the drum ceases with a strong flam, they halt, and recover, and at the retreat and ruffle, go about brisk, and disperse. They are then halted and formed by their own officers, in separate regiments, and after they have cleaned their pans and bayonets, and unfixed, they march into line, as before.

Ruffle, a caution, flam, the rear ranks go about; flam, they take their open distance, the officers marching into the front; flam, halt. Ruffle, a caution for the grenadiers to go to the right; flam, face as usual; flam, grenadiers march; flam, front. Ruffle, a caution for the rear ranks to close; flam, they close. Ruffle, a caution for the grand divisions to wheel to the right; flam and march, they wheel, the officers trailing their espartoos, and marching at the head of their proper divisions; flam, the ranks open, look well to the right, heads up, and march with great regularity. The officers salute the general, as they pass, taking care to time their salute, so as to put off their hats exactly opposite the general.

In returning the bayonets, the men keep their heads down, till they bring their right hands to the muzzle of their firelocks, when they all raise their heads together, and throw them well to the right.

When the grenadiers cover the flanks, and return again to the right, the step is to be kept to the file, slow time, with the right foot to the strong stroke of the drum.

The

ORDERS for the WILTSHIRE

1762 The four battalions in camp, not under marching orders, are to mount a captain's piquet, and the officers are to be very attentive in going their rounds, that no damage is done, or huts or straw in the rear set on fire. Any person, who shall be found guilty of attempting this, may depend on being punished in the most exemplary manner.

Returns to be given in to the major of brigade from every battalion, the morning their last division quits the ground.

The whole of the Lancashire and the first division of the North Gloucestershire are to march off the ground to-morrow, by their respective routs, at the time most convenient to their own officers. R. O.

Piquet this evening: Captain Long, ensign Long, for lieutenant Merrewether, and ensign Stump.

Quarter guard to-morrow: Ensign Howson.

A regimental court martial to be held, at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning: Captain Long president; lieutenants, Bracher and Merrewether, ensigns, Davis and Stump, members.

¶ At this court martial, John Rufs and William Burges, both private soldiers of captain Duke's company, charged by lieutenant Leake of the Essex, with assisting in setting fire to the sutling booths, in the rear of the Lancashire regiment, were found guilty, and ordered 50 lashes each, which they received at piquet mounting, the next evening.

To lieutenant general, earl of Effingham, or officer commanding his Majesty's Wiltshire regiment of militia, at the place of encampment near Winchester.

It is his Majesty's pleasure, that you cause his Majesty's regiment of militia for the county of Wilts, under your command, to march from the place of encampment near Winchester, in three divisions, according to the routs annexed (acquainting this office with the receipt of this order) to the places mentioned in the margin hereof, where they are to be quartered and remain untill further order; Wherein the civil magistrates and all others concerned are to be assisting, in providing quarters, impressing carriages, and otherwise, as there shall be occasion. Given at the war office this 19th day of October, 1762.

By his Majesty's command,

CH. TOWNSHEND.

The men, who march to-morrow, are not to be put on the piquet this evening.

The

The four following companies to hold themselves in readiness 1762 to march to-morrow morning, at 8 o'clock; viz. colonel lord Bruce's, lieutenant colonel Northey's, captain Awdry's, and captain Stonehouse's. A return of the number of non-commissioned officers and private men in each company that marches, to be given in immediately, in order to ascertain the number of billets to be drawn for on the march. The camp necessities of each tent, viz. kettles, canteens, hatchets, and mallets, are to be got together for inspection, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and great care is to be taken, that they are not lost on the march. The kettles to be put into the bags, and carried by a man of a tent. The baggage of each company to be ready for loading, at half past 6 o'clock. The baggage and rear guards to consist of a serjeant, corporal, and 12 men, each. The recruits of each company, who are not clothed, are to be formed into a squad, and marched in the rear by a serjeant, except two of a company, who are to be porters to the waggons.

RULES to be observed by each division of the regiment, in quarters.

The ballotted and married men are to have furloughs first, ten of a company at a time, and for three weeks. One, two, or three days pay to be advanced to them, in proportion to their distance from home. The remainder to be stopped for leather breeches, and altering their old regimentals into a foraging cap and jacket, which are to be done immediately on the return of the men from furlough. The new cloathing, arms, and accoutrements, gaiters of both sorts, regimental shoes, stockings, buckles, and garters with buckles, are to be given in to the serjeant, who acts as quarter-master to the division, who is to keep them in a general store room, and be accountable for them, as he is excused all other duty. The commanding officer must always be satisfied of the good condition of the above particulars, before he signs a furlough. No permits to be granted, except on particular occasions, which are to be certified by persons of credit, acquainted with the case.

Those men, who have disgraced the regiment by their misbehaviour, during the camp, all slovens, and venereals, whose duty has fallen upon their comrades, are to be formed into a squad, to be exercised by the drill serjeant, daily, and to furnish the guards. The men, who wait on officers, are to be included in this squad, when the gentlemen whom they attend are absent.

The guard to be a piquet, consisting of a serjeant, corporal, and 18 men, at Newbury and Devizes, and 12, at Marlborough. They are to parade always on the right, at roll callings, without gaiters, and with side arms only, unless ordered otherwise; and are to furnish centinels occasionally for the commanding officer of 1762 of the division, and the guard of prisoners. Some place to be appointed for any number of them to rendezvous at, for the above purposes, or for the whole guard, in case of a fire in the town, on which the remainder of the whole division is to parade at the place where the roll callings usually are.

The companies are to be quartered as near, and in as compact a manner within themselves, as can be.

It is recommended to the officers, to visit quarters frequently, and the serjeants are expected to visit them, every night after taptow beating, and between 12 and 2 o' clock, at noon, when they are to examine the condition of them and the messes, which is to be reported to the commanding officer, every evening after roll calling, as well as the names of all men absent from their quarters, between those hours, when they are expected to be at home, cleaning their rooms, cooking, and dining. A regular roster is to be kept on the door of every lodging and eating room, as has usually been observed in quarters.

The roll callings are to be, at 10 o' clock in the morning, and before sun set in the evening. An officer of the day is to visit and report the state of the sick.

RESOLUTION of MILITIA.

To colonel lord Bruce, or officer commanding the Wiltshire militia, 1762

House of Commons, December 9, 1762.

My Lord,

I have the commands of the House of Commons, to transmit to your lordship a resolution, to which they have this day unanimously agreed; and which your lordship will be pleased to communicate to the officers of the corps of militia under your lordship's command.

It gives me singular satisfaction to have the honour on this occasion of signifying the sense, which the House of Commons entertain of the seasonable and meritorious services, performed by the militia to their country.

I am,

My Lord &c.

J. CUST Speaker.

Jovis, 9. die Decembris, 1762.

RESOLVED, Nemine contradicente,

That the thanks of this house be given to the officers of the several corps of militia which are embodied, for the seasonable and meritorious service they have done their country; and that Mr. Speaker do signify the same, by letter, to the colonel or other commanding officer of each respective corps.

To the right honourable Sir John Cust bart. Speaker of the House of Commons.

Sir,

I beg you will be pleased to acquaint the House of Commons how true a sense the officers of the Wiltshire corps of militia entertain of the honour done them, by their resolution of the 9th instant.

Nothing could have added to the satisfaction we feel at receiving this honourable testimony of the approbation of our conduct, but the very obliging manner in which you, sir, have been pleased to communicate it.

I have the honour to be &c

BRUCE.

ORDERS for the WILTSHIRE

1762 To colonel lord Bruce, or officer commanding his Majesty's regiment of militia for the county of Wilts, at Devizes.

War office, 20th December, 1762.

My Lord,

The King having been pleased to sign orders for disembodying the corps of militia for the county of Wilts under your command, with all convenient speed, I am commanded by his Majesty, in his name, to express to you the great satisfaction he has received from the seasonable and meritorious service of the militia of that county, and as a mark of his royal approbation, I am commanded to acquaint you, that his Majesty is pleased to permit each non-commissioned officer and private man to keep his cloaths and knapsack, which are at present in wear, and also to allow them respectively, fourteen day's pay, from the day of their being disembodied, which you are hereby authorized to pay them, taking from each man respectively a receipt for the money so paid, which receipts you are to transmit as vouchers to the pay-master general for your repayment.

Before the disembodying you are to take care, that all the quarters be duly satisfied, that the accounts between the non-commissioned officers and private men and their officers be made up to the day of their being disembodied, and that the officers produce acquittances from each man respectively of his arrears and other just pretensions.

You are to take care, that the swords, arms, and accoutrements, be collected, in order to their being lodged according to directions given in the act of parliament, which I send you inclosed

You are also to give strict charge to the non-commissioned officers and private men, when disembodied, not to travel with any arms, nor more than three in company, upon pain of the severest punishment.

Before the disembodying you are to cause his Majesty's orders, and also this letter, to be read at the head of each company in your corps, that they may be convinced of his Majesty's most gracious bounty to them.

The good behaviour, activity, and zeal of the officers and private men of his Majesty's militia, exerted for the security and defence of this kingdom, oblige me at the same time to express the great satisfaction I feel, in having the honour to communicate to you his Majesty's gracious approbation of their service, and his bounty to the soldiers.

I have the honour to be &c.

W. ELLIS.

Before

Before the receipt of the foregoing order from the war office, 1762 which was late in the evening of the 21st instant, six companies had been disembodied without their cloathing, and the other four were in readiness to go early the next morning. As the regiment had been dismissed in this manner, and as by the fortnight's pay commencing from the day of disembodiment each division, there might be some difficulty in adjusting the accounts of the whole, which were calculated and settled to the 24th instant, when the pay expired by the vote of the year, the distribution of the cloathing and the fortnight's pay, granted by his Majesty's bounty, were deferred, till further instructions were received from the war office. The secretary at war was accordingly wrote to, and he being of opinion, that the men were entitled to their pay by establishment, to the day of their being disembodied, inclusive, and from that day, exclusive, the fourteen days pay was to be calculated, on the 11th day of January, 1763, in consequence of an advertisement in the Salisbury Journal, for that purpose, the regiment was assembled by companies, at different places of rendezvous within each division, when the cloathing and his Majesty's bounty of fourteen day's pay were there distributed to the men, agreeable to the order from the secretary at war.

ORDERS DURING THE ANNUAL EXERCISE, IN 1763.

Devizes, May 2.

Parole Wiltshire.

It is colonel lord Bruce's order, that the following regulations be observed by the Wiltshire regiment of militia, during the month's exercise.

The rolls are to be called on the Green, twice every day, viz. at 9 o' clock in the morning, and at sun set in the evening.

The first squad is to be exercised twice every day, viz. immediately after roll calling, in the morning, and at 5 o' clock, in the afternoon; the second squad is to be exercised three times every day, viz. at 7 and 11 o' clock, in the morning, and at 3 o' clock, in the afternoon; and the recruits are to be exercised at the same time with the first squad, and at 12 o' clock at noon.

The men are to be subsisted at the rate of 6d. a day, the corporals at 9d. and to be accounted with and paid the rest at the end of the month. It is to be recommended to the men in the strongest manner, to behave well in their quarters, and to appear clean on all occasions. Quarter rolls to be given in this evening, at roll calling, which is to be at 6 o' clock. The arms and accoutrements to be given to the men to-morrow morning, at 7 o' clock.

A captain, lieutenant, and ensign, for duty daily, who are to visit quarters, and inspect the messing and the squads at exercise. The lieutenant and ensign are to report to the captain, and the captain to the commanding officer. Officers for this duty, to-morrow: Captain Long, lieutenant Biggs, and ensign Long.

A guard to mount daily, consisting of a serjeant, corporal, and 12 men, which is to furnish two centinels over the colours, and patroles to go regularly every hour, all night. A return of the state of each company to be given in this evening.

Devizes, May 3.

Parole Pembroke.

Lists of the 2d and 3d squads to be given in every morning to the captain of the day, with the names of the serjeants, and the hours they are to be out at. The rolls of the quarters to be collected by the serjeant major, and given to the adjutant, as soon as possible.

Officers of the day, to-morrow: Captain Awdry, lieutenant Bracher, and ensign Davis. This duty is to be done, as follows; the captain is to visit the quarters and direct the night duty, the lieutenant is to attend the 3d squad, and the ensign the 2d.

Devizes, October 16.

Parole Surry.

A general field day to-morrow: The men to assemble on the Green, at half past 10 o'clock, clean dressed, powdered, and their hair plaited, if the length will admit, and turned under their hats. The arms and accoutrements to be perfectly clean, and each man supplied with 11 rounds of powder. The officers and men to be in black half gaiters and white stockings. A piquet will be formed, composed of part of the 2d squad, and marched to the exercising ground, to prevent the battalion's being crowded. The recruits will parade at the usual time, in their regimentals and white stockings, and be exercised by Serjeant Pritchard.

It is lord Bruce's order, that corporal Hulbert, of captain Montagu's company, be reduced to the pay and duty of a private sentinel, for misbehaviour, and William Hiseock, of the same company, is appointed to be a corporal in his room.

Officer of the day, to-morrow: Lieutenant Biggs.

Devizes, October 17.

Parole Gloucester.

The men to parade for for exercise, at troop beating to-morrow morning.

Officer of the day, to-morrow: Lieutenant Long.

Devizes, October 18.

Parole Grantham.

Colonel lord Bruce is thoroughly sensible of the great attention shewn by the officers to their duty, and desires them to inform the non-commissioned officers, drummers, and privatesmen, that their behaviour in general has been such, as to gain them the approbation of their officers and the inhabitants of the town, which, he hopes, they will continue to deserve. They should be cautioned to behave always quietly and soberly, in coming to Devizes and returning home, as the character of the regiment depends much upon it.

STANDING RULES AND ORDERS.

The officers, in their uniforms, are to conform to his Majesty's regulations for the marching regiments, and are to have the word Wilts on their buttons. The number of loops on their lapells to be ten, and set on in pairs. On duty they are to have their skirts hooked up, to wear black stocks, plain white stockings, black half gaiters, and hair queued. Their coats are to be hooked across the breast.

The

The officers are to report the state of their companies quarters to the officer of the day, who is to inspect the sick that are able to attend, at guard mounting, to see them properly taken care of by the surgeon or apothecary to the regiment, and to do the same by the sick that are not able to attend. 1770

Officers commanding companies are desired to give notice to their men, where they may receive their cloathing at the expiration of their three year's service.

The articles of war to be read to the regiment, as soon as conveniently can be, after it assembles, and to any men who join it afterwards: and those parts of the militia acts, which subject them to martial law, stoppages, and punishment for insisting into the army, being inrolled as substitutes in any other corps of militia, or leaving the county without a certificate from the deputy lieutenants of the subdivision where they were enrolled.

In cases of fire, or on any other occasion which may require the regiment to assemble immediately, the Alarm Post is to be upon the Green, where the companies with their arms and accoutrements are to form upon the usual ground, and wait for orders.

Publick notice is to be given to the inhabitants where ever the regiment is quartered, not to trust the men.

No man is to receive pay or cloathing till he is inrolled. The recruits are to be fitted as soon as possible, but are not to wear the cloathing till the second sunday, except those who have served in the regiment before.

Quarter and mess rolls to be made out for each company, and duplicates for the commanding officer of the regiment.

No permits to be granted, except in extraordinary cases properly certified to the commanding officer. No militia man to go on permit or work in any part of his regimentals.

The serjeants, corporals, drummers, and fifers, are to assemble at Devizes, always, the saturday fortnight before the regiment, and to appear uniform in their dress.

The serjeants are to visit quarters every night, once at least, and report to the officers of their companies all absentees and men not gone to bed. The serjeant of the guard is to go the rounds with a patrol every night, at least twice, and not only keep the streets quiet and free from soldiers, but confine any who may be up in their quarters, or refuse to go to bed. A report to be made of such, and of all who are found in the streets after taptoo beating, to the officer of the day, next morning.

Not fewer than one serjeant of each company to reside at Devizes, and leave of absence will be given to none, till the cloathing, arms, and accoutrements, have been examined, and found to be in good order.

- 1770 A serjeant, drummer, or fifer, going out of the county without leave, liable to be taken up as a deserter. Those, who reside at Devizes or Marlborough, are required to parade on sundays, and march together to church. The absentees to be reported weekly, in writing, to the adjutant by the serjeant major, quartermaster serjeant, (or in their absence) by the senior serjeant present. No serjeant, drummer, or fifer at work, is to wear any part of his best regimentals.

A general field day to-morrow: Officers and men in half gaiters. Officer of the day, to-morrow: Lieutenant White.

Devizes, October 19.

Parole Turin.

The companies are to deliver in their arms and cloathing to-morrow morning, in the following order:

Captain Poore's and major sir James Long's, at 7 o' clock:

Lord Bruce's and captain Stonehouse's, at half past 7:

Captain Duke's and captain Montagu's, at 8;

Lieutenant colonel Northey's and captain Vince's, at half past

8: After which the men are to be paid and dismissed. All deficiencies of the cloathing, arms, and accoutrements, or damage done through the men's neglect, are to be made good at their expence.

Devizes, October 20.

Parole Farewell.

This was the last annual meeting of the regiment, whilst it remained under the command of lord Bruce, who resigned his commission on the following occasion. Upon the death of lieutenant colonel Northey, which happened about the beginning of January, 1771, the earl of Pembroke, who had hitherto left the course of succession to be settled among the officers themselves, was pleased to appoint Henry Herbert esq. of High Clear in Hampshire, an ensign of about a fortnight's standing, to be lieutenant colonel in the room of Mr. Northey, in preference to major sir James Long, who had served in the regiment 12 years. Such a step could not fail of giving disgust, and accordingly major sir James Long, captains Egerton, Duke, Stonehouse, Montagu, and Poore, captain lieutenant Webb, lieutenants Long and Biggs, and ensign Poore, followed lord Bruce's example, and resigned their commissions. By these resignations the command of the regiment passed into the hands of a new corps of officers, who, it is to be hoped, engaged in the service, not from party views, but on true constitutional principles.
